PICTORIAL HISTORY

CAMP POLK, LOUISIANA

THE HERITAGE of the 37th Infantry Division is portrayed by its division insignia and by the seal of the State of Ohio, its home state.

The Great Seal of the State of Ohio symbolizes a prosperous state, one that has contributed greatly to the advancement of science, agriculture, industry and education. Since Ohio's infancy as a state, its men have not only realized that the strength of the nation's armed forces lies in the reserve components that back up the small regular establishments but have also unselfishly devoted time to be "citizen-soldiers" ready to bear arms when needed.

The Buckeye Division is but a part of Ohio's citizen soldiery. And, during its active duty tours, it has proudly numbered citizens of all other states. On the battlefields of two great wars, gallant members of the 37th Division have made the red disk superimposed upon a white "O" a badge of courage and the symbol of a fighting unit, second to none.

This then is the heritage of the men of the 37th Infantry Division of today—to be good citizens, ready and trained to do our part as good soldiers.

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDING GENERAL
CAMP POLK, LOUISIANA

To the Officers and Men of the 37th Infantry Division

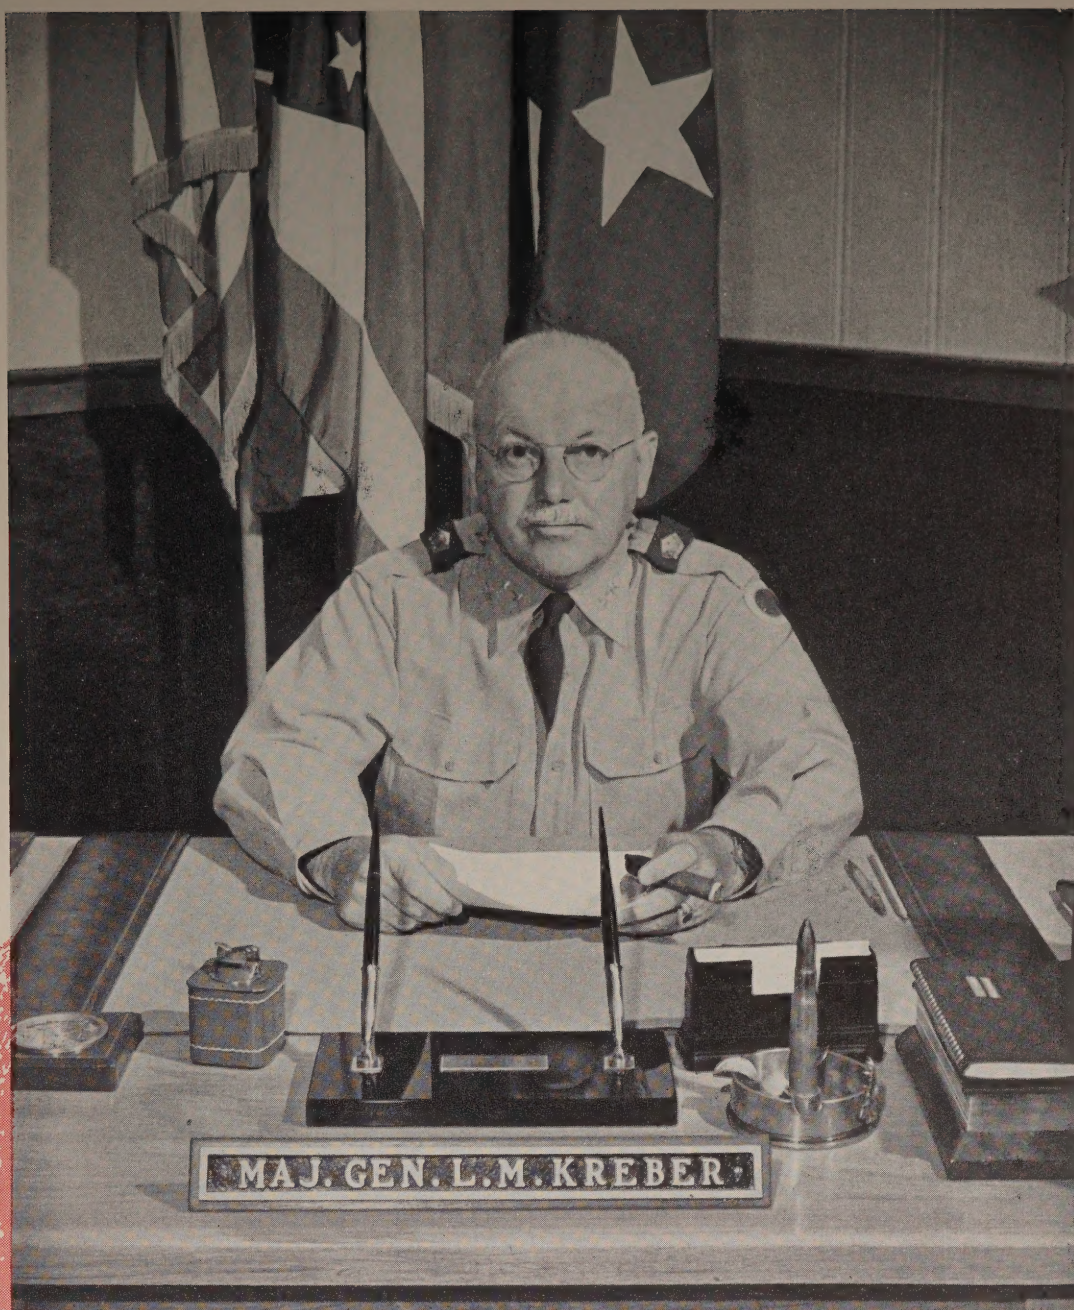

The history of the 37th Division is long and honorable and it is both fitting and proper that its record should be preserved for posterity. To all of you who have sacrificed so much to make our record great, my heartfelt thanks.

Here within the pages of this Pictorial History are recorded the events and people who shared with you the joys of our achievements and the hardships of our training.

It is my sincere hope that when time dims these recollections, that this volume will once again call to our memories the comradeship, the pride of a job well done and most of all, deep sense of satisfaction of having contributed our share.

To all of you wherever you may be, my very best wishes and deepest gratitude.

LEO M. KREBER
Major General, USA
Commanding

MAJOR GENERAL LEO M. KREBER
Division Commander

Major General Leo M. Kreber, Commanding General of the 37th Infantry Division entered the military service of his country as a cadet at the United States Military Academy.

General Kreber received his appointment to West Point, for the class beginning in June 1915, after he had completed one year of studies at Ohio State University. He graduated from the Academy on 11 June 1918. Promoted to the rank of first lieutenant on 25 October 1918, he served with the Army of Occupation from July 1919 to October 1920.

In January, 1922, he resigned from the Regular Army to enter an old established family business—the Van Bolt-Kreber Electrotape Company in Columbus, Ohio. In June of that year, he joined the Ohio National Guard as a captain of field artillery, later being promoted to major and then lieutenant colonel.

In 1936, he was promoted to the rank of colonel and given the task of organizing the 136th Field Artillery Regiment which he also commanded.

On October, 1940, one day before the 37th Division went into active federal service, he became Commander of the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade and was promoted to Brigadier General in May, 1941.

Upon triangularization of the 37th in January, 1942, he became commanding general of the Division's artillery and served with the Division throughout World War II.

Separated from the service on 21 June 1946, General Kreber was named Commanding General of the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard on 11 November 1946, and commissioned a major general in the Ohio National Guard, later receiving federal recognition as a major general of the National Guard of the United States.

In January, 1949, he was appointed Adjutant General of Ohio, a position he held until returning to active duty in January, 1952.

His awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster and Navy Gold Star, Air Medal, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and Purple Heart.

BRIGADIER GENERAL KENNETH COOPER

Commanding General—Division Artillery

Brigadier General Kenneth Cooper, commanding general of the Division Artillery, is the only man in the 37th Infantry Division today who has served continuously with this Division since it was organized.

General Cooper launched his career with the Buckeye Division by enlisting as a private in May 1917, serving overseas with Battery "B", 135th Field Artillery Regiment as a chief of section. Discharged in April, 1919, he enlisted in the Ohio National Guard, serving with the 135th Field Artillery Regiment from first sergeant to lieutenant colonel.

In October 1940, he was promoted to colonel and assumed command of the 136th Field Artillery Regiment of the 37th as it was ordered to active duty. From Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania, he took the first detachment of American troops, an advance party of the 37th, to New Zealand in April 1942.

Serving with the Division throughout all of its campaigns in the Pacific, he was executive officer of the Division Artillery. He was released from active duty in April 1946.

In September, 1946, he was appointed brigadier general of the Ohio National Guard and in November, 1946 he assumed command of the 37th Division Artillery.

On 3 January, 1947, he was appointed Assistant Adjutant of the State of Ohio, a position he held until returning to active duty with the 37th in January, 1952.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart.

BRIGADIER GENERAL DELBERT E. SCHULTZ

Assistant to Division Commander

Brigadier General Delbert E. Schultz, assistant to the Division Commander, commanded the first unit of the 148th Infantry of the 37th Division to engage in combat in World War II.

General Schultz's 31-year military career began in November, 1921 when he enlisted as a private in the 148th Infantry and thirty years later, plus one day, he was promoted to brigadier general.

Prior to being commissioned a 2nd lieutenant of the infantry in 1926, he had served as a private, corporal, sergeant and first sergeant.

In 1940, he entered federal service with the Headquarters Company, 148th Infantry, 37th Infantry Division and while on active duty he held every rank up to and including colonel. He was executive officer of a tank battalion, commanded the Third Battalion, 148th Infantry, was executive officer of the 148th Infantry and assumed command of the regiment during the Philippine Campaign in May, 1945.

Upon reactivation of the Buckeye Division as part of the Ohio National Guard in 1946, he reassumed command of the 148th, commanding this northwestern Ohio regiment until being named Assistant to the Division Commander in October, 1951.

Awards held by General Schultz include the Distinguished Service Cross, Legion of Merit, Silver Star, Bronze Star, and Combat Infantryman's Badge.

From 1939 to 1952, he owned a super-service station in Defiance, Ohio. Prior to that time, he was City Auditor of the City of Defiance for seven years.

HISTORY OF THE BUCKEYE DIVISION

Meuse-Argonne . . . Verdun . . . Flanders . . . New Georgia . . . Bougainville . . . Munda . . . Lingayen Gulf . . . Manila . . . Baguio . . . Cagayan Valley. All were famous battles of two great World Wars in which men of the 37th Infantry Division proved their superiority in hard fought victories, won at a price, but each a major achievement toward ultimate peace.

The 37th received its original designation and authorization as an infantry division of the Ohio National Guard on July 18th, 1917. Ohio long had wanted a division of its own. Units of the Ohio National Guard had fought gallantly in the War of 1812, the War with Mexico, the Civil War, and the Spanish-American War. Then in 1916, units of the Ohio National Guard were ordered into service for nine months along the Mexican border. In each conflict, Ohio troops fought as part of other major units.

After many obstacles were overcome, it seemed that the state would get a division of its own. Then at the start of this country's participation in World War I, the War Department transferred three infantry regiments from Ohio to the Louisiana-Mississippi-Arkansas National Guard Division. Ohio's Governor, James Cox, prevailed upon the Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, O., to stop this transfer. This was done, giving Ohio an all-Ohio division and the 37th has remained as such.

In July, 1917, a number of units of the Ohio National Guard were combined into the 37th Infantry Division. The same month, the Buckeye Division was alerted for federal training at Camp Sheridan, Ala.

A look at training scheduled for the first troops of the 37th discloses that in general subjects, it was quite similar to the Army's training program of today—qualification in individual arms, first aid and sanitation, individual and unit tactics.

The logistical and supply men of the 1917 version of the 37th had to be concerned with such items as 1,854 draft horses, 2,032 riding horses, nearly 2,700 mules, nearly 1,200 horse- or mule-drawn wagons and carts, 238 bicycles, 1,209 motor cars, 319 motorcycles, and more than 600 trucks of various types and 64 prime-mover tractors.

For ten months, the 37th went through training under the leadership of Major General Charles G. Treat. In April, 1918, Major General Charles S. Farnsworth replaced General Treat as Division Commander and commanded the Buckeyes throughout subsequent combat in Europe.

By May of 1918, the 37th was adjudged ready for movement overseas. At this time, the Division was separated into two shipments, never to be reunited for combat in France. Moving to Camp Lee, Va., was one group composed of Division Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, 134th Machine Gun Battalion, 73rd Infantry Brigade (145th and 146th Infantry Regiments), 74th Infantry Brigade (147th and 148th Infantry Regiments), 112th Field Signal Battalion, and 112th Engineer Regiment. The other group went to Camp Upton, N. Y., to stage for overseas movement. This group included the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade (134th, 135th and 136th Regiments), 112th Train Headquarters and Military Police, 112th Supply Train, and 112th Ammunition Train.

The Division, less artillery and trains, moved to France, arriving at Brest on June 23, 1918. On July 1st, it moved to Bourmont for intensive training in trench warfare. Twenty-three days later, the Buckeyes relieved the 77th Division at Baccarat. Remaining in the trenches here until September 16th, the 37th was relieved and moved up into the Meuse-Argonne sector, the site of the last great battle of World War I. Here, the 37th was selected as the American Division to launch this great offensive. From where the Buckeyes were dug in, Verdun was plainly visible. Once a heavy artillery barrage had lifted, the men of the 37th pushed forward through a sea of mud for four days—taking all objectives.

On September 30th, the Ohio troops were moved back to a rest camp for six days. Then the 37th was shifted into the Pannes sector. Nine days of intensive combat followed. It was here that an officer of the 148th Infantry, 2nd Lt. Albert E. Baesel, from Berea, O., earned the Congressional Medal of Honor—an award made posthumously.

Following duty in the Pannes sector, the 37th was rushed to Belgium where it again demonstrated its fighting qualities by forcing the crossings of the Lys and Escaut Rivers. Armistice on November 11th found the Division knocking on the door to Antwerp.

Records of the American Battle Monuments Commission disclosed that the 37th had suffered 5,387 casualties—1,066 battle deaths and 4,321 wounded. In addition to the posthumous award of the Medal of Honor to Lt. Baesel, 76 Distinguished Service Crosses were awarded to men of the 37th, two Distinguished Service Medals and 22 Citations for Gallantry in Action.

Praise for the offensive tactics and action of the 37th in combat was found in a statement made by General Von Rundstedt of the German Army after the Armistice. General Von Rundstedt declared that the 37th Division was one of the seven best divisions the German troops had faced.

Following the Armistice, the 37th retraced its steps back through Belgium into France where it was stationed until its triumphant return to America in March, 1919.

The 62nd Field Artillery Brigade joined the 37th in February, 1919, prior to the movement homeward. This Brigade, after being separated from the Division in 1918, was sent to Camp de Souge, France, for training with French 75mm and 155mm cannon. Following seven weeks of training, it was fully equipped and assigned to the First American Army on the opening day of the great Meuse-Argonne offensive. The 62nd Brigade served successively with the Fourth American Corps, Second American Army, Second French Colonial Army Corps and the 17th French Army Corps. At one time, each of the Brigade's three regiments had served separately with different divisions—the U. S. 28th, 33rd and 92nd Divisions.

Rebuilding the 37th Infantry Division as part of Ohio's National Guard began in June, 1920. The Buckeye Division was organized as a "square" division to include: two brigades of infantry, containing two regiments each; a brigade of artillery, composed of two regiments; and a full complement of service regiments—medical, quartermaster, and engineer.

Summer field training each year saw the infantry and service units training on the shores of Lake Erie at Camp Perry—whose rifle ranges are among the best in the world. The artillery units trained at Fort Knox, Ky. In 1936, a third regiment of artillery, the 136th, was organized and commanded by Colonel Leo M. Kreber. In the same year, the entire Division took part in maneuvers at Fort Knox, and in 1940, the Buckeyes participated in the Wisconsin maneuvers.

During these years of peace, units of the 37th were called upon on numerous occasions to aid at disaster scenes, to perform rescue work during floods such as the Ohio River valley flood in 1937, and to preserve order and protect lives and property.

Just before the Ohio troops went to Wisconsin in 1940 for maneuvers, President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked and received from Congress authority to order the National Guard of the United States into active service "... for such period of intensive training as may be necessary to raise its efficiency to a point comparable with that of our small Regular Establishment." It had been during the spring of 1940 that the German armed forces had brought disaster to France and the Low Countries.

On September 26th, 1940, Ohio's Governor John W. Bricker received a telegram from the Secretary of War which ordered "... the 37th Infantry Division, less the 37th Tank Company and Companies "F" and "I", 112th Medical Regiment, ... into active military service of the United States effective October 15th, 1940." Camp Shelby, Miss. was designated as the training site for the Division.

Physical examinations, thorough and exhaustive, disqualified some officers and enlisted men. Among these was the Division's commander, Major General Gilson D. Light. Brigadier General Robert S. Beightler was selected by Governor Bricker as the new Commanding General. Coincident with General Beightler's assumption of command was his promotion to major general. He commanded the 37th throughout its five years of active duty, and he was the sole commander of a National Guard division to hold his command so long. Following the war, he was one of the two National Guard general officers to be selected for Regular Army commissions as general officers.

Upon arrival at Camp Shelby, Miss., men of the 37th worked night and day to complete construction of their tent areas, mess halls, and training areas before settling down to intensive training.

Nearby Hattiesburg, Gulf coast towns, and New Orleans provided facilities for week-end trips for men on pass. December witnessed a mass exodus to Ohio for welcome time with families and friends.

In January, 1941, the 37th passed a general inspection with flying colors. In fact, the inspectors declared that the Buckeyes would not have to repeat basic training—an uncommon record for a National Guard division. The same month, the first fillers arrived at Camp Shelby. They were all draftees from Ohio, making the 37th an entirely Ohio Division. Basic training for the draftees was followed by intensive individual and unit tactical training.

In June, the Division moved into Louisiana for maneuvers—maneuvers which took place in the area from Alexandria west to the Sabine River. Much of the maneuvers were in the Kisatchie National Forest where Camp Polk is now located. Most of the exercises took place in a sea of mud since it rained 28 of the 30 days the Buckeyes were in Louisiana.

Back at Camp Shelby, the Buckeyes were jolted by an Act of Congress that extended their one year service for 18 more months. Then came more Louisiana maneuvers in August and September, following which the 37th returned to Camp Shelby for more training. Training took on a new meaning after the December 7th attack on Pearl Harbor and the declaration of war by Congress on December 8, 1941.

On the eve of the new year, the 1st Battalion of the 112th Engineer Regiment was separated from the Division. With the 34th Infantry Division, the battalion sailed for Europe where it made a distinguished record in combat.

January, 1942 brought triangularization of the Division. The new 37th was composed of: the 145th, 147th, and 148th Infantry Regiments; the 134th, 135th, 136th, and 140th Field Artillery Battalions; the 112th Quartermaster Battalion; the 112th Medical Battalion; Headquarters and Military Police Companies; and the 37th Signal Company. The 166th Infantry Regiment was no longer a part of the 37th. The 1st Battalion, 166th Infantry shipped from New Orleans, La., in February, 1942 for the islands of Aruba and Curacao, being one of the first elements of the original 37th to be sent overseas.

The 37th Division, in various stages of alert since December 7th, finally received orders for movement to Indiantown Gap, Pa., in February of 1942.

Arriving at Indiantown Gap, the Division's new mailing address was APO 37, c/o Postmaster, New York, N. Y. Everyone expected the Buckeye Division to go to Europe. Actually around Christmas, 1941, the 37th had been alerted to go to the Philippines. When it became apparent that it would be impossible to reinforce the Philippine Islands, the 37th plus the 32nd and 34th Divisions were picked for European duty. However, at a Washington, D. C. conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in January, 1942, it was decided that two more American divisions would be sent to the Pacific to stem the swift southward progress of the Japs. The only two divisions well enough trained and equipped to undertake the task were the 37th and the 32nd.

Late in March, the 1st and 3rd Battalions, 147th Infantry and the 134th Field Artillery Battalion were detached from the 37th and sent to Tonga Tabu, an island group in the South Pacific. The 2nd Battalion remained with the 37th until it joined the Regiment on Guadalcanal.

The 37th originally was slated to go to New Zealand, but orders were changed to send the division to the Fiji Islands. An advance detachment, commanded by Col. Kenneth Cooper, executive officer of Division Artillery, which had left Indiantown Gap for New Zealand arrived at the Fijis in time to greet the Division.

Before boarding trains for San Francisco, the 37th was augmented by the 117th Engineer (Combat) Battalion, and replacements to fill all units to full strength.

On May 26th, 1942, the Buckeyes boarded four transports and sailed from San Francisco—beginning their 42 months in the Pacific. The convoy split after crossing the Equator, one half sailing for the Fiji Islands and the other half sailing for New Zealand and then returning to the Fijis.

The 37th had a two-fold mission while at the Fijis: defense of the islands against any invasion attempt and training in a new type of warfare—jungle warfare. While at the Fijis, the 37th had assigned to it the 129th Infantry Regiment and the 6th Field Artillery Battalion. Here also, the 112th Quartermaster Battalion was redesignated the 37th Quartermaster Company. An Officer Candidate School was opened with Lt. Col. Howard F. Haines as Commandant. Two classes of 150 men each were graduated from this school.

While the 37th was training with fervor in the Fijis, the Marines had launched the first major offensive against the Japs at Guadalcanal. By January, 1943, the Marines had been relieved by the Americal Division and later the 147th Regimental Combat Team and the 25th Infantry Division. In February, the battle of Guadalcanal was over. The Americal Division eased back to the Fijis to trade places with the Buckeye Division. Before moving to Guadalcanal, the men of the 37th pumped every drop of combat experience and lessons out of the battle-wise troops.

Division Honor Guard at Esquilbecq, France—Dec. 17, 1918.

The 1,100 mile voyage through dangerous waters to Guadalcanal was uneventful and on April 6th Guadalcanal's shoreline became visible. Here, the men of the 37th encountered a major enemy of jungle warfare—the anopheles mosquito. Because of the high malaria rate in the American Division and other units fighting there, Army health officers declared that 90 days was the maximum a unit could remain in malaria-infested regions. The 37th disproved this by training and fighting more than 32 months under such conditions. Upon arrival at Guadalcanal, another offensive was launched alongside the one against mosquitoes—that of selling government life insurance. And this campaign was as successful as the other.

Guadalcanal evolved into a staging area for the Buckeye Division, rather than a garrison assignment. Training during June, 1943, was aimed at perfection of small-unit tactics, intensive and realistic drills in landing operations and establishing beachheads. The 37th had been overseas for more than a year. They were battle-wise but not battle-tested. Their baptism of fire was not far away.

On June 30, 1943, the 43rd Division, with the 136th Field Artillery Battalion attached and the 37th Division in reserve, launched an attack on New Georgia with an invasion of Rendova Island. Several days later, the 3rd Battalions, 145th and 148th Infantry Regiments landed under Marine control on the north coast of New Georgia to cut the Jap's supply lines. The 145th Infantry followed by the 148th were hurriedly shipped to Rendova to relieve the 169th Infantry of the 43rd Division. On July 25th, the Buckeye Division opened its major attack on Munda—driving towards the vital Munda airfield. The 37th, once the fighting was over, had not only seized the Munda airstrip but also helped develop it for a bomber strip—vital for the bombing and neutralization of Rabaul and the Solomons.

It was on New Georgia that the 37th proved the feasibility of using artillery as a major weapon in jungle warfare. Tricks developed by the Buckeye artillerymen for employing full potency of artillery in the jungles were quickly picked up by other divisions.

PFC Frank Petrarca, a medical aid man in the 145th Infantry, earned on July 31st with his life the first Congressional Medal of Honor to be awarded to a man of the 37th in World War II. On the same day, the 148th Infantry's most famous hero, Pvt. Rodger Young, of Company B, gave his life to enable his platoon to withdraw from a precarious position—an act which earned the posthumous award of the Medal of Honor and an act immortalized in song.

Munda fell on August 5th. On the 15th, the 37th turned its tasks over to the 25th Division and was ordered back to Guadalcanal—the actual movement taking place in September. August 31st, the 1st Battalion, 145th Infantry landed at Vella LaVella as a part of the task force assigned to wipe out Jap forces there.

Back at Guadalcanal, the 37th rested, was reequipped, and was brought back to strength with replacements. The New Georgia action had cost the Division 206 men killed in action and 928 men wounded. The Jap dead numbered 1,426. But rest was short-lived.

The Bougainville offensive was only six weeks away and the 37th was tagged for this job—hitting the beaches in the Empress Augusta Bay sector on November 8, 1943, just a week after the initial assault by the 3rd Marine Division.

During the first few weeks, the 37th developed the beachhead while being plagued with continual fierce air attacks. From the beaches, the Buckeyes fought inland. Then in March, 1944, the Japs made the desperate counter-attack on Hill 700 with the objective of driving the Americans back into the sea. The Jap 17th Area Army, including its famous 6th Division, slashed again and again at Hill 700. This hill had been developed into a strongpoint by the 145th Infantry. By sheer superiority of numbers, the Japs gained a stronghold on Hill 700. The determined Buckeyes fought fiercely for two days, reducing the Japanese positions and retaking the hill. Smashing through this counter-attack was the 2nd Battalion, 148th commanded by Lt. Col. Herbert Radcliffe.

This was the 37th's first defensive fighting of the Pacific campaign. It continued through March until the 27th when shell-happy remnants of the Jap 45th Infantry staggered back across the mountains. The Japs were licked and they knew it. On Bougainville, the Buckeye Division had met and conquered a force that was not only fanatical but desperate and totally indifferent to death. The 37th killed 7,335 Japs with a loss of only 185 killed and 1,426 wounded—a ratio of nearly 40 to 1.

From April to November, 1944, the Division trained for the Philippine operation and at the same time held Bougainville. In two campaigns, the Buckeyes had excelled in jungle fighting. Ahead was open terrain and finally street-to-street and house-to-house combat. The men of the 37th had to learn the tactics being used by their brothers-in-arms in Europe.

Ships were loaded in December and the Division was on its way to storm the beaches at Lingayen Gulf, Philippine Islands. When the convoy was abreast of Manila Bay, Jap suicide planes launched successive attacks which failed, though one plane crashed in the water about 20 yards from a ship carrying men of the 136th Field Artillery Battalion.

The landing at Lingayen Gulf was accomplished on January 9, 1945 and the 37th headed straight down the central plains for Manila, encountering continuous light or heavy opposition. The first major action came about midway to Manila, abreast the Clark Field-Fort Stotsenburg area. The Buckeyes took the airfields and strategic heights beyond. Then, the 37th continued toward Manila, reaching Plaridel Junction where the highways converged north of Manila. A strongly entrenched, reinforced Jap Battalion was waiting at Plaridel Junction and it took two days of bitter fighting for the 148th Infantry to clean it out. The 1st Cavalry Division, which had only recently arrived on Luzon, raced through this opening, reaching Manila only a few hours ahead of the Buckeyes.

The Japs had decided on virtually complete destruction of Manila. This meant that the 37th was forced to fight building-by-building, room-by-room. For weeks, the Buckeyes fought and slept in rubble heaps. Many crawled across open ground in the face of pillboxes, lugging flame throwers on their backs, to loosen fiery blasts on the enemy.

During the fiercest fighting for Manila, the 37th reached Bilibid Prison, rescuing nearly 1,300 internees including 800 American soldiers who had been taken prisoner when the Philippines fell in 1942.

Dominating the governmental section of Manila was the famed Walled City or "Intramuros". This Spanish fortress had resisted capture for 300 years. That is, until it was assaulted by the 37th. The feat was accomplished by lining up all of the Division Artillery plus a tank destroyer battalion, a number of tank units and some Corps artillery to form a semi-circle around the Walled City. More than 10,000 rounds of high explosive pounded the Intramuros at point-blank range.

Manila fell on March 4th. In their fanatical attempt to hold the city, the Japanese lost almost 25,000 men—with the 37th killing more than 13,000. The fall of Manila didn't mean rest for the Buckeyes. Within three weeks, the 37th was fighting along the mountain highway leading to Baguio, the summer capital of the Philippines. This was a slow and expensive battle in mountain terrain.

While the bulk of the 37th was assaulting Baguio, the 145th Infantry was sent to the mountains east of Manila to take Mount Pacawagan, another bitter, bloody struggle. Immediately following the capture of Baguio, the 148th Infantry was pulled out and rushed towards Balete Pass to help the 25th Division break the Jap resistance there and open the entrance to the Cagayan Valley.

By the end of May, the Jap force holding Balete Pass had been annihilated and the entire 37th Division began its famous race up the Cagayan Valley—a race which covered nearly 240 miles in 26 days. The Buckeye Division, with about 15,000 men plus attachments, was given the single-handed task of taking the Valley. By employing a maximum of close-in air support, artillery and heavy weapons of every kind, the 37th completely routed the Japs—numbering more than 50,000 and the last major enemy organized force on Luzon.

The 129th Infantry opened the onslaught up the Cagayan Valley. It passed the baton on to the 145th which in turn passed it to the 148th. It was the tactics of leap-frogging with heavily mechanized leading elements and lots of artillery support that kept the Japs off-balance. As one infantry regiment moved forward, the other two kept the flanks secure. The 37th had long been known as the most "wasteful" division in the Pacific as far as expending artillery ammunition. The practice paid with great dividends—the Division lost fewer men than any other division with comparable fighting time.

The 37th had steam-rolled to within 35 miles of the northern coastal town of Apari when it met a battalion of the 11th Airborne Division which had parachuted in. Then the Buckeyes moved into the foothills to pursue the Jap remnants who were hiding there.

Finally, after more than two years of almost continual fighting, the 37th Division got the rest it had long waited for.

In recapitulation, the Buckeye Division spent more than 592 days in combat—a record in itself. In three and a half years in the Pacific, the 37th served throughout without relief for rest or recuperation—fought offensively and defensively—was constantly in fever-infested jungles—engaged in amphibious landings and bitterest of street fighting—and attained every assigned objective. It was never defeated.

The Division suffered casualties including 1,800 killed and more than 8,000 wounded in action. It accounted for 33,580 Japanese dead and took 2,180 prisoners during combat.

For heroism in battle, proud wearers of the red disc superimposed over a white "O" earned eight Congressional Medals of Honor, 109 Distinguished Service Crosses, four Distinguished Service Medals, 939 Silver Star Medals, 61 Legion of Merit Awards, 94 Soldiers Medals, 6,366 Bronze Star Medals, and more than 9,800 Purple Heart Medals. The Combat Infantryman's Badge was awarded to 15,690 Buckeye Division personnel.

The formal surrender of Japan took place on September 2nd, 1945 in Tokyo. The same day, General Tomoyuki Yamashita surrendered himself and all Jap forces in the Philippines to General Beightler, who commanded the Luzon Area Command in addition to the 37th.

It was still several months before the Division, as a unit, left for the United States. However, the majority of the combat veterans had returned via the "high-points" system and in September, only in the officer ranks was there a plurality of original Ohioans. By December 1st, all of the Division was at sea and before Christmas, all had landed at San Francisco. On December 18, 1945, the 37th Infantry Division was inactivated as a part of the Army of the United States.

The 37th was returned to Ohio National Guard status. Key personnel—mostly officers—realized that reorganization of the 37th was necessary and the groundwork was begun. Ohio's Governor, Frank J. Lausche, assigned the reorganization to Brigadier General Leo M. Kreber, the Division Artillery Commander throughout the war. In ceremonies on November 11, 1946, the first units were Federally recognized. General Kreber was named Division Commander and promoted to the rank of major general. Colonel Kenneth Cooper became Division Artillery Commander as a brigadier general and Brigadier General Cecil B. Whitcomb became the Assistant to the Division Commander.

By December, 1948, the Buckeye Division was one of three National Guard Divisions in the country to which federal recognition had been extended to all its units.

For the National Guardsmen, regular armory drill periods were weekly and 15 days were devoted each summer to field training. The summer encampments were held at Camp Perry, O. in 1947, at Camp Atterbury, Ind. in 1948, 1949, and 1950 and at Camp McCoy, Wisc. in 1951. The Ohio Guardsmen were at Camp Atterbury for summer field training when fighting started in Korea in June, 1950. There were rumors that the 37th would be called to active duty immediately and remain at Camp Atterbury. However, the end of the week saw field training completed and the movement back to Ohio accomplished. Four National Guard Divisions were called, in August, for active duty and two more received their alert in December.

Summer of 1951 saw the Buckeyes move to Camp McCoy, Wisc. for field training. The oldtimers remembered that it was in 1940 that the 37th had participated in the Wisconsin maneuvers over terrain that later became part of Camp McCoy. And in a few weeks, the 37th had been called into federal service. Would 1940 be repeated?

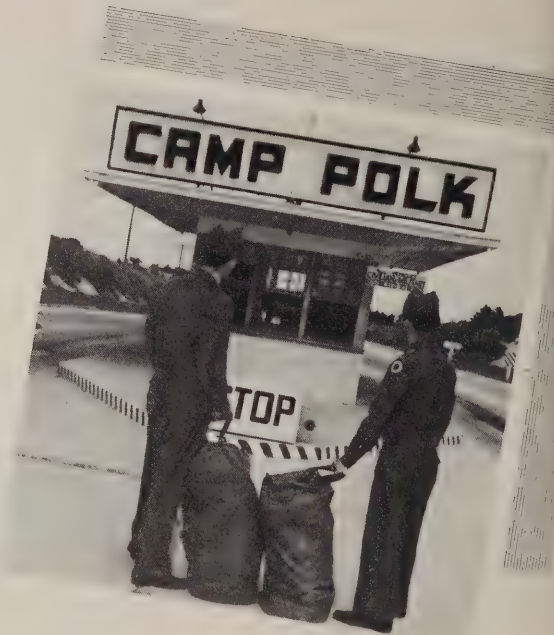

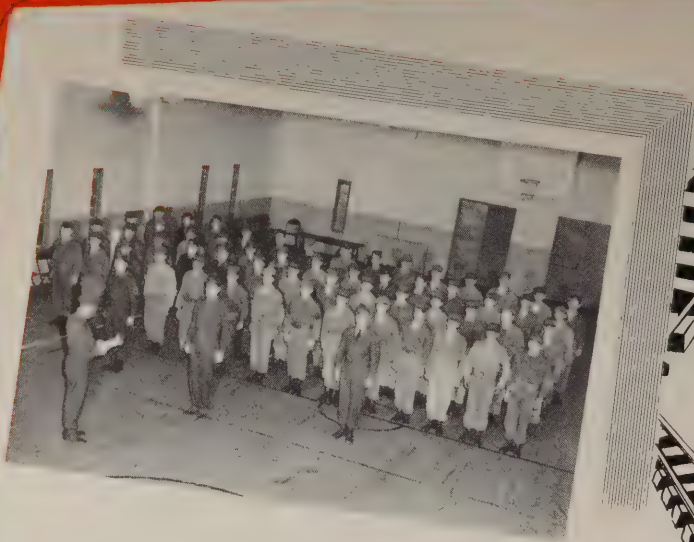

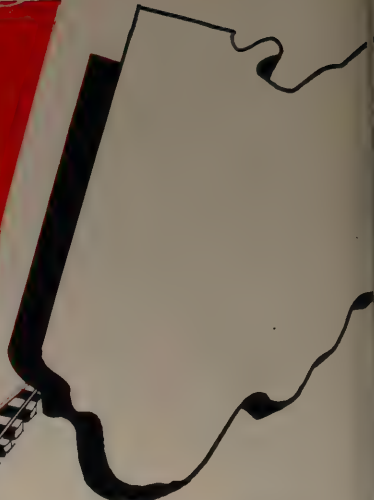

Then it was announced that General Mark Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces would visit Camp McCoy and units training there. Rumors reached a new peak when General Clark returned for revision a proposed itinerary with the comment, "I want to spend more time with the 37th." At the conclusion of his visit, General Clark addressed the major unit commanders and officers of Division Headquarters at a luncheon. After his talk, there was little doubt in the minds of those present that the 37th would soon be called to active duty.

The big question was answered on September 12, 1951. By 10 o'clock that morning, Governor Frank J. Lausche had received a telephone call from Secretary of Army Frank Pace that the 37th was alerted. At 3:46 P.M., the same day, a TWX arrived which stated in part, "By direction of the President and the Secretary of Defense, units of the National Guard of the United States listed below are alerted to be ordered into active federal military service . . . effective 15 January 1952 . . . 37th Infantry Division . . . to train at Camp Polk, La. with dates of arrival at training station to be 15-25 January 1952, inclusive . . ."

This meant for the 37th Division, its third call to active Federal service. One man has served continuously with

Chief of Staff

COLONEL HAROLD L. HAYS

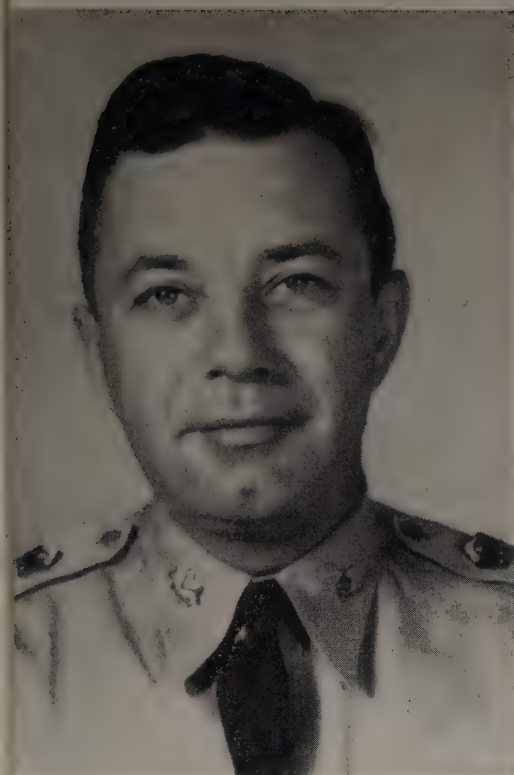

Colonel Harold L. Hays, Chief of Staff, served as the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, of the 37th for six years prior to his appointment to his present assignment in November of 1949.

A veteran of both World Wars, Colonel Hays joined the Buckeye Division of the Ohio National Guard in 1923, following his graduation from Ohio State University in that year. His first assignment was that of an officer in Headquarters, 74th Infantry Brigade. He served in the 166th Infantry Regiment and in 1931 became commander of Company L, 147th Infantry at Xenia, Ohio.

Called to active duty in 1940, he served as chief inspector and executive officer of the Ohio Selective Service Office until rejoining the Buckeye Division at Camp Shelby, Miss., in 1941. He was commander of 3rd Battalion, 148th Infantry and Adjutant General of the Division before his assignment to the position of G-1 in 1943. He served in this assignment throughout the Division's action in the Pacific and was renamed G-1 when the Division was reorganized as part of the Ohio National Guard in 1946.

His awards include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star and Combat Infantryman's Badge.

When the 37th was inducted into federal service in January, 1952 Colonel Hays received his second leave of absence for military duty from his position as Superintendent of the Boys' Industrial School of Ohio, located in Lancaster. Prior to his appointment to this position in 1939, he had served for ten years as superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home in Xenia, Ohio. He is a native of Washington C. H., Ohio.

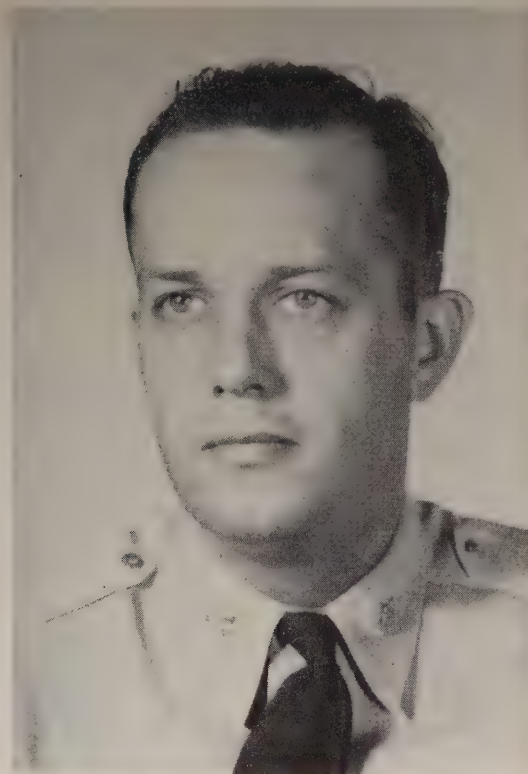

Lt. Col. John W. Cohan, Asst. Chief of Staff, G-1, served a major portion of his active duty during World War II in the headquarters of the 37th Division. He was appointed assistant chief of staff, G-1 in November, 1949, after serving for three years as the division's Adjutant General.

Commissioned a second lieutenant in October, 1940, Colonel Cohan was assigned to the AG section of Division headquarters and was subsequently promoted to 1st Lt., captain and major. During the latter part of the war, he was assigned to Camp Van Dorn, Mississippi, as Adjutant General.

Lt. Colonel
Archibald M. Rodgers

Lt. Col. Archibald M. Rodgers, Asst. Chief of Staff, G-2, served as an artillery officer, 43 months overseas, with the Buckeye Division during World War II and has been a member of the Division continuously since October, 1939.

His career in the 37th began in October, 1939, when he enlisted in Battery "D", 136th FA Regiment.

During the Division's World War II tour of duty he was battalion survey officer, battery executive, battery commander and S-2 of the 37th Division Artillery, serving in New Zealand, Fiji, Guadalcanal, New Georgia, Bougainville, and Luzon.

An attorney in civilian life, Colonel Rodgers practiced law in Lima, Ohio, prior to returning to active duty with the 37th in January, 1952.

Lt. Col. Herbert B. Eagon, Asst. Chief of Staff, G-3, is now in his 25th year of military service, both in the National Guard and active duty in the Army.

During World War II, Colonel Eagon held the ranks of captain, major, and lieutenant colonel and fulfilled assignments as assistant G-2 of the Buckeye Division, G-2 of the Island Command in Fiji and G-2 of USAFISPA (Pacific Theater).

In March, 1949, he was named G-3 of the 37th. Prior to that time he was assigned to Military Intelligence Reserve holding the grade of colonel for two years.

A farmer and cattle breeder in civilian life, Colonel Eagon has taken an active interest in various phases of soil conservation.

Lt. Colonel
Chalmers R. Wilson, Jr.

Lt. Col. Chalmers R. Wilson, Jr., Asst. Chief of Staff, G-4, has completed more than 27 years of military service in the Ohio National Guard and active duty in the Army.

When the 37th was inducted into Federal service in October, 1940, he was quartermaster supply officer of the 112th QM Regiment. He later served in the Pacific Theater as assistant G-4 of the 38th Infantry Division and upon return to the states was assigned to Camp Lee, Virginia as fiscal director.

In civilian life, Colonel Wilson has been associated with the Department of Taxation, State of Ohio for 26 years. His father, the late Chalmers R. Wilson, served 37 years with the 37th Division and his son, Chalmers R. Wilson, III, is now assigned to 38th CID Det., Camp Polk, La.

The I & E board at Division always has plenty of interesting material posted.

Meet Joe Buckeye

Here's a fellow you're going to be seeing quite a bit of in the following pages. He originally came from Ohio but now his large family includes many brothers in arms from all of the States in this great nation.

Not too long ago he was a civilian minding his own business and trying to lead a peaceful life. He may have worked in the corner drug store, on a farm, or in a factory, but he has another job now, and a much more important one, too! Of course he'd rather be home, but he's willing to do his part to make this mixed up world of ours safe and free for all people.

As you look through the rest of this book, you'll find Joe Buckeye on every page. He is YOU and your friends—all soldiers of the Buckeye Division. He is very versatile. He's proficient in at least one of the more than 300 military specialties needed in the Division. He can do any job capably that the Army needs done and isn't afraid of soap and water either when it's his turn to clean pots and pans.

So, without any further introduction, we invite you to turn the page and meet "JOE BUCKEYE."

Happy Birthday
to the Military Police Corps.

Right — These M.P.'s discover that you have to build your own stockade in the field.

It takes plenty of P. T. to meet the standards of the Military Police.

There's no traffic jam when the M. P.'s are on duty!

The men celebrate the Military Police Corps birthday.

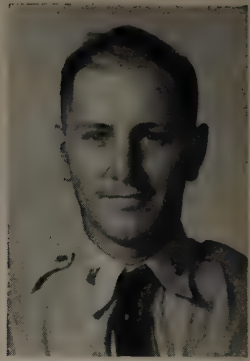

The correct way to search a prisoner is demonstrated.

These men who deliver the food to the mess halls are high on everybody's popularity list.

You can see by the smiles on the men's faces that they have just passed an important inspection on their 2½ ton truck.

It's a daily routine for these men of Quartermaster Company to make sure that all the mess halls are well supplied.

112th ENGINEER (C) BATTALION

History

The 112th Engineer Combat Battalion's proud history dates back over one hundred and fifteen years of distinguished service to our country during three wars.

It was initially organized in February of 1837 as the Cleveland Grays, an independent volunteer militia company at Cleveland, Ohio. They were mustered into Federal service for the first time in April of 1861. After several subsequent periods of Federal service, the 112th reorganized in March 1899 as the 1st Battalion of Engineers, and thus became the first Engineer organization in the National Guard of the United States. After leaving the Federal service at the close of the Civil War they brought with their distinguished record of service, the Campaign Streamers of Bull Run, Shiloh, Murfreesboro, Tennessee, Chickamauga, and Atlanta.

But this was only the beginning of a proud record. After service on the Mexican border, the 112th answered our country's call in World War I. They participated in such famous campaigns as; Lorraine, Ypres-Lys, and Meuse-Argonne. Once again the outlook for the future looked very bright for all the peace loving nations of the world.

When our country's freedom was threatened again in World War II, the 112th Engineers were called upon and proudly added to their distinguished military record the streamers: Normandy (with Arrowhead—Omaha Beach—D-Day), Northern France, Ardennes-Alsace, Rhineland, and Central Europe. The Presidential Unit Citation was awarded to them for the Normandy invasion. And, once again the future looked bright for peace throughout the world.

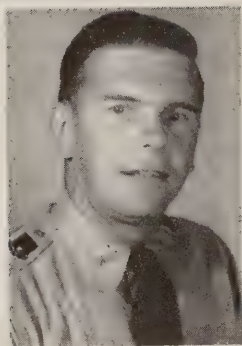

Again, another aggressor with his widespread plans of world communism arose. Once more the 112th Engineers had returned to active duty, being activated with the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard, presently training at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

112th MEDICAL BATTALION

History

The 112th Medical Battalion was constituted and organized as a Medical Department of the Ohio National Guard in 1904. It was first assembled for active duty July 14, 1916 for service on the Mexican border. Exactly nine months and five days later it was released from duty and inactivated.

Reorganized again June 19, 1917 as the Sanitary Train, Ohio National Guard, they were ordered to active duty August 5, 1917. One month later they became the 112th Sanitary Train and were assigned to the 37th Division for training at Camp Sheridan, Alabama. They went overseas and participated in such famous battles as those at Lorraine, Meuse-Argonne, and Ypres-Lys. After the victorious World War I, the 112th was inactivated at Camp Sherman, Ohio, April 21, 1919.

They were again reorganized May 17, 1921 as the 112th Medical Regiment; Federally recognized 1921-1924 by elements; and permanently assigned to the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard.

The dangers which threatened the United States because of the apparent nearness of World War II caused her to hasten to strengthen her defenses. The 112th was inducted into active military service on Oct. 15, 1940, and redesignated as the 112th Medical Battalion of the 37th Infantry Division on Feb. 1, 1942. It was during World War II that the 112th saw its greatest glory. They participated in the invasions of the Northern Solomons, and the Philippines, becoming one of the first elements of troops to march into Manila. They were decorated with two meritorious Unit Streamers, each embroidered "Pacific Theater." After our victory in World War II, the 112th was inactivated, December 13, 1945 at Camp Stoneman, California.

As the people of the United States looked forward to many years of peace and happiness between the nations of the world, no one thought that in five years we would find ourselves in another conflict with an aggressor nation.

The Korean outbreak and the widespread influence of communism caused the 112th Medical Battalion to again be activated with the 37th Infantry Division on January 15, 1952 for subsequent training at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

137th TANK BATTALION (m)

History

The 137th Tank Battalion (Medium), the organic tank Battalion of the 37th Infantry Division, had its origin in the activation of the 637th Tank Destroyer Battalion, Light (Towed), 19 December 1941, at Camp Shelby, Mississippi. The nucleus of personnel came from Battery G and Battery H of the 136th Field Artillery Regiment, those batteries being eliminated when the 37th Infantry Division was triangularized. The Battalion was activated under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Gordon Gelmore. On 13 February 1942 the Battalion was allocated to the Ohio National Guard, and attached to the 37th Infantry Division. The Battalion was redesignated the 637th Tank Destroyer Battalion on 8 June 1942.

The Battalion trained with the Division in this country, accompanied the Division to Indian-town Gap, Pennsylvania, and to the San Francisco Port of Embarkation. Together with the Division, they sailed from San Francisco 26 May 1942. The Battalion remained with the Division on New Zealand, and sailed with them to Fiji. When the Division sailed from Fiji for Guadalcanal, the Battalion was left behind on Viti Levue to guard Mandie Air Base near Lautoka. While the Battalion was fulfilling this assignment, Lieutenant Colonel Richard L. McNelly assumed command of the Battalion. During this period the Battalion was part of the II Island Command until 30 June 1944, at which time the unit sailed from the Fijis for Esperitu Santo in the New Hebrides.

The Battalion arrived on Bougainville in September, 1944 and was attached to the XIV Corps, but encamped alongside the 148th Infantry. It was attached to the 37th Infantry Division for the first part of the Philippine campaign, sailed with the Division, made the assault landing on Lingayen Gulf, participated in the approach march on Manila, fought in the battle north of the Pasig River, took part in the attack on the Intramuros, and was in the final battles south of the Pasig. For these actions the Battalion was awarded the Distinguished Unit Citation.

After the Manila campaign the Battalion was part of XIV Corps in the Batangas campaign, assisting both the First Cavalry Division and the 11th Airborne Division, in the battles of Mount Macolod and Mount Malepunyo. Company B of the 637th was attached to the 37th Infantry Division for the Baguio and Cagayan Valley campaigns, and took part in all those battles with the Division.

At the close of the Luzon campaigns the Battalion was assembled at Muntinlupa, south of Manila, for re-equipment, replacements, and renewed training. The Battalion was assigned to the Sixth Army and sailed for Japan in September, 1945 as a part of the occupation forces. The original members of the Battalion had, in a large part, returned to the States by the end of 1945. The Battalion was inactivated in Japan on January 25, 1946.

The Battalion was redesignated the 637th Tank Battalion on 4 August 1946. On 14 November, 1947, Headquarters, Headquarters and Service Company, Company A, and Medical Detachment were reorganized and Federally recognized in the Ohio National Guard and the National Guard of the United States, with its station in Ashtabula, Ohio, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Herbert E. Gordon. Company B was Federally recognized on February 1, 1949, and Company C was Federally recognized February 2, 1949, with stations in Barberton and East Liverpool, respectively. The Battalion was redesignated the 137th Heavy Tank Battalion of the 37th Infantry Division on February 1, 1949, and then to the 137th Tank Battalion (Medium), its current designation, on September 1, 1950.

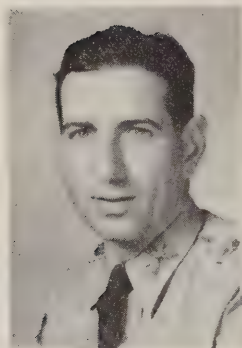

The Battalion was ordered to active duty 15 January 1952, and departed from home stations for Camp Polk, Louisiana 20 January 1952.

145TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

HISTORY OF THE 145th INFANTRY

The 145th Infantry traces its history back to 1803 when the original companies of the Ohio Militia were formed. All companies of the Militia participated in the War of 1812 and the Mexican War 1846-1848. The Militia Companies later formed the 7th Ohio Volunteer Regiment and participated in the Civil War 1861-1864. The Regiment fought in the battles of Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chattanooga, Virginia (1862), and Georgia (1864).

Perpetuating the fine record and traditions of the 7th Ohio Volunteer Regiment, the Fifteenth Ohio Infantry was organized from ten independent Militia Companies in 1877.

The Fifteenth Infantry Regiment was disbanded 22 March 1881. However, Companies "D", "G", "H", and "K", were maintained as "unattached companies", and on 7 July 1881 became the nucleus of the Fifth Ohio Regiment which was now comprised of Companies "A", "B", "C", "D", "E", and "F".

The Fifth Ohio Regiment continued in existence in Ohio until the outbreak of the Spanish-American War. On 11 May 1898, it was mustered into Federal service as the Fifth Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The Regiment served at Tampa and Fernandina, Florida, and was mustered out 5 November 1898. On 14 April 1899, the Fifth Infantry was disbanded but Companies "B", "C", "E", "G", and "H", were designated as "unattached Companies" in the service of the State. On 14 July 1899, the Fifth Ohio Infantry was reorganized with the unattached companies serving as a nucleus.

The regiment attended the Victory Celebration of Admiral Dewey in New York City in 1899; participated in the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in 1901; the World's Fair at St. Louis in 1904 and the Jamestown Exposition in 1917. It took part in the funeral services of President McKinley at Canton in 1901 and the dedication of the McKinley Memorial in 1907.

The Fifth Infantry continued on duty in Ohio until it was mustered in for federal service on the Mexican Border. It was mobilized at Camp Willis, Columbus, Ohio on 16 June 1916, and served on the Border in the vicinity of El Paso, Texas from September 1916 to March 1917.

On 15 July 1917, the Fifth Ohio Infantry was called into Federal service for duty in World War I. Along with parts of various companies of the Second Infantry Regiment, it was redesignated the 145th Infantry Regiment and included as one of the units of the Thirty-Seventh Division.

The 145th Infantry arrived at Brest, France, 22 June 1918, and went to Bourmont (Haute-Marne) area where it engaged in intensive training until late in July 1918. The Regiment engaged in three major campaigns during this war: Lorraine, Meuse-Argonne, and Ypres-Lys. Upon return to the United States, the 145th Infantry was demobilized at Camp Sherman, Ohio on 22 April 1919. During 1919, several units of the Third Regiment of Infantry, Ohio National Guard, were organized; and on 2 August 1920, the Third Regiment of Infantry, Ohio NG was organized. On 1 July 1921, the Third Regiment of Infantry, Ohio NG was formally redesignated the 145th Infantry, Ohio NG and the State of Ohio announced that the Regiment was organized to perpetuate the history of the Fifth Regiment of Infantry which served in the Spanish-American War and the 145th Infantry of World War I.

It was following World War I that the regimental insignia was designated. "Excel" was selected to be the Regiment's motto. A shield of white (the former Infantry color) was designated as the insignia. The upper right hand corner has a falcon from the coat of arms of Montfaucon, France and bisecting the shield diagonally is a wavy band to symbolize the Escalante (Scheldt) River site of the most outstanding feats of the Regiment during the World War. A giant cactus represents service by the Regiment on the Mexican Border in 1916-1917.

The 145th Infantry was ordered into the Federal service on 15 October 1940 as a part of the 37th Infantry Division. The Regiment engaged in intensive training at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, until February 1942 when it moved to Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pennsylvania. On 5 May 1942 the Regiment entrained for San Francisco where on 26 May 1942 it embarked for New Zealand.

After spending thirty days training on New Zealand, the Regiment moved to Suva, Fiji Islands. The 145th Infantry intensively trained on Fiji until April 1943 when it departed for Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands. Guadalcanal provided only patrol action and further training.

On July 5th, the Third Battalion, attached to a Marine Raider Force, made an assault landing on the north shore of New Georgia Island to cut the Japanese supply line while the main battle was being fought on the other side of the island. The balance of the regiment landed on Rendova the middle of July for the New Georgia campaign, its first major action in World War II.

It was on July 31st, during the drive towards the vital Munda Airfield that a medical aid man of the 145th, PFC Frank Petrarca, won with his life, the first Congressional Medal of Honor to be awarded to a man of the 37th.

At the end of the successful New Georgia operations, the First Battalion, 145th Infantry made a landing on nearby Vella LaVella Island where the Battalion held a defensive perimeter around the island's vital airfield.

From the Solomons, the 145th and other units of the 37th returned to Guadalcanal to stage for the Bougainville invasion. On November 8th, 1943, the Regiment landed at Empress Augusta Bay for the bitter fight for the island which was highlighted by the battle for Hill 700 when the 145th avenged the Rape of Nanking. It was during this battle that a portion of the Second Battalion won the Presidential Unit Citation.

On January 9th, 1945, it made an assault landing at Lingayen Gulf. From there it proceeded south engaging in such battles as Clark Field, Fort Stotsenburg, and the battle for Manila. Following the capture of Manila, the rest of the 37th took part in the battle for Baguio and the 145th was attached to the 6th Division and later to the 38th Division for the successful assaults on Mount Pacawagan, Mount Binicayan, and Sugar Loaf Mountain.

The 145th returned to the 37th and took an active part in the Cagayan Valley campaign during which the 37th disrupted and defeated all organized Japanese resistance in the Valley.

During World War II, the Regiment engaged in combat for 594 days. In December, the 145th returned to the United States and was inactivated on 18 December 1945.

On November 21st, 1946 reorganization of the 145th Infantry Regiment as a part of the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard, was begun and on January 15th, 1952, the Regiment, with 11 battle streamers attached to its colors was again called to active duty and soon began training at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

Commanding Officer
145th Infantry
Regiment

COLONEL SYLVESTER T. DEL CORSO

Colonel Sylvester T. Del Corso, commanding officer of the 145th Infantry is now in his twenty-fifth year of service in this regiment; twenty-five years of service which he began as a private.

He was first named commanding officer of the 145th near the end of the battle of the Philippines. When the northeastern Ohio unit was reactivated as part of the Ohio National Guard in 1946, he reassumed command and reorganized the regiment.

In 1940, when the Buckeye Division was ordered into federal service, Colonel (then lieutenant) Del Corso was commanding officer of Company D. He advanced to captain, infantry battalion S-3, battalion executive officer, battalion commander, regimental executive and then to regimental commander.

His awards include the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Purple Heart.

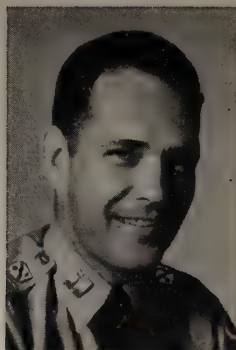

In 1945, for his World War II record, Colonel Del Corso was elected the outstanding alumnus of Baldwin-Wallace College, at Berea, Ohio.

Prior to return to active military service with the 37th in January, 1952, he was superintendent of the Correction Farm of the City of Cleveland, Ohio.

Thirty-five tons of fighting power on the move!

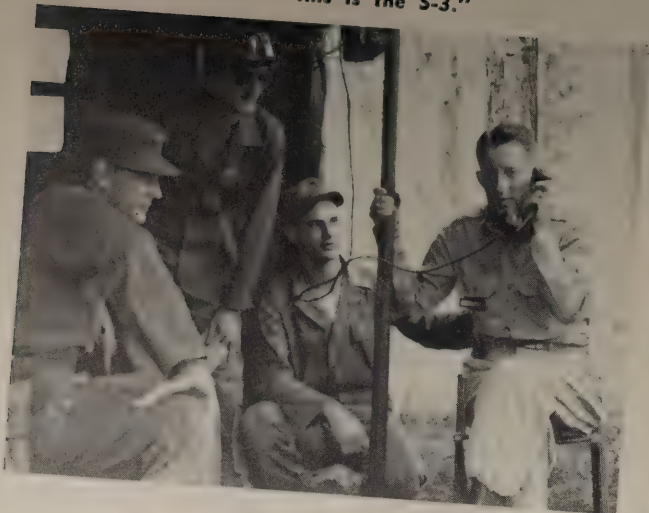

Keeping on the alert for any aggressor tanks.

A platoon of tanks moves into an attack formation during a regimental problem in the "Birds Creek" area.

"Yes—this is the S-3."

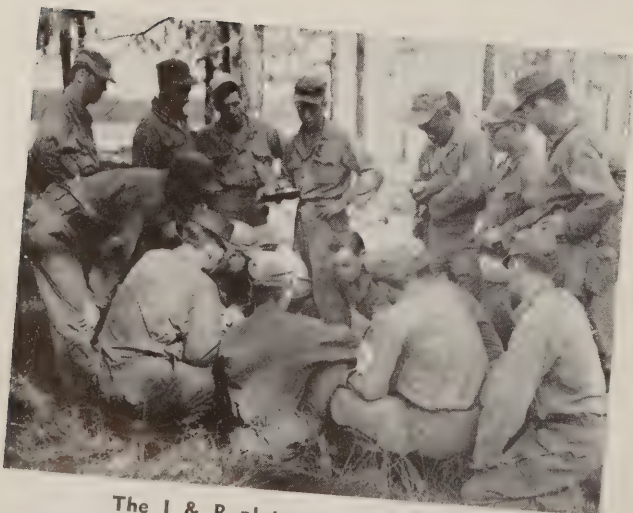

Must be interesting in there!

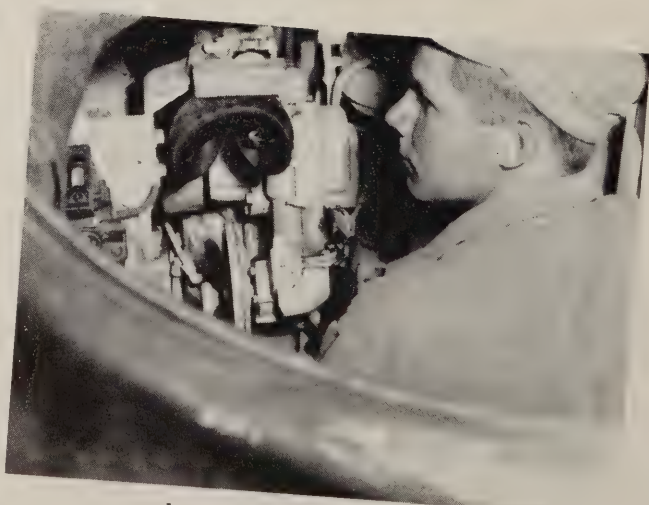

A convoy lines up . . .

. . . Prior to picking up the troops

The I & R platoon gets oriented.

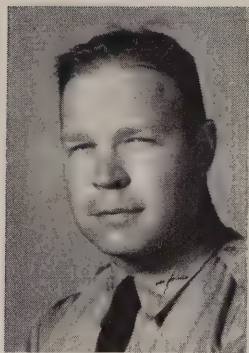

Look at all those Gadgets!

"The best mess hall in the first battalion."

These men of "D" Co. know how to set up their 81 mm. mortar fast!

"Dog" company's men keep a sharp lookout for enemy air-craft.

What does "Antoinette" have that "D" Co. doesn't?

A "75" crew from "D" Co. transplant their weapon.

All the comforts of home.

147TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

HISTORY OF THE 147th INFANTRY

On 19 April, 1854, an independent infantry company known as the Guthrie Greys was organized in Cincinnati, Ohio. This parent of the 147th Infantry Regiment was expanded to regimental size, redesignated and reorganized several times before becoming the 147th, but regardless of its various designations, it has contributed much to this nation's service in the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, the Mexican Border action, World War I and World War II.

As the Sixth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, the expanded Guthrie Greys were mustered into federal service for the Civil War and earned the following battle honors: Shiloh, Murfreesborough, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Virginia (1861), Mississippi (1862) and Kentucky (1862).

Following the Civil War, the regiment subsequently was designated the 1st Infantry Regiment, Ohio National Guard and as such served during the Spanish-American War and then under the same designation was mustered into federal service in June, 1916, due to the hostilities along the Mexican Border.

When the 37th Infantry Division was organized, the First Infantry was consolidated with the 6th Infantry Regiment, O.N.G. and redesignated the 147th Infantry Regiment.

After training at Camp Sheridan, Alabama, the 147th along with other infantry units of the 37th sailed to France and subsequently took part in the action in the Baccarat Sector, in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and the Ypres-Lys operation. To symbolize its World War I service, the 147th has streamers to its colors inscribed as follows: Lorraine, Meuse-Argonne and Ypres-Lys.

From 1919 through 1920, the Cincinnati elements consolidated with elements of the former 148th Infantry Regiment and reorganized as the First Infantry Regiment of the Ohio National Guard. Then in 1921, this First Infantry Regiment was redesignated the 147th Infantry Regiment.

At this time, a Regimental shield was designed for the 147th Infantry Regiment. The slogan "Cargoneek Cuyoxim" comes from the Cherokee Indian words meaning "always ready." Indian phrases were greatly in favor at the time and this slogan was given immediate Federal approval. The "gules" or birds on the shield were taken from the Lorraine coat-of-arms and signify that the Regiment saw its first World War I action in the Lorraine sector. The lion rampant comes from the Belgian coat-of-arms, signifying that the Regiment saw its last World War I action in Belgium. The blue background of the shield represents the Infantry. The red sash across the field is to symbolize the crossing of the Scheldt River during World War I.

The 147th served as a Ohio National Guard unit continuously until 15 October 1940, rendering invaluable peacetime service during such occasions as the 79.99 foot flood in Cincinnati and the Miami Valley in 1937, in the Ohio Penitentiary disaster in Columbus and many other instances when aid was needed.

Called on active duty with the 37th in October, 1940 the 147th trained at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, taking part in the Louisiana and Texas maneuvers in June and then in August and September of 1941.

After moving to Indiantown Gap, Pennsylvania with the 37th to stage for overseas movement, the 147th, less the Second Battalion, was combined with the 134th Field Artillery Battalion and elements from the service troops of the Buckeye Division and formed into the 147th Regimental Combat Team and became separated from the 37th.

Leaving the Gap in April, 1942, the 147th Combat Team became part of Task Force 0051 and sailed, by way of the Panama Canal, for Tonga Tabu, a small island in the Friendly Islands where an airfield was to be built as part of a secondary air route to Australia. Meanwhile, the Second Battalion remained with the 37th and accompanied it to the Fiji Islands where it took station on the northern sector of Viti Levu at Vatukoula.

After an unopposed landing on Tonga Tabu, the 147th RCT spent about 6 months on the island during which time the Japanese march to the South had been blunted in the Coral Sea battle. The First Battalion, 147th Infantry left Tonga Tabu in October, 1942 and travelling by way of Espiritu Santo and after a couple of changes in destination, arrived at Guadalcanal in the midst of the hot battle for Henderson Field.

On Guadalcanal, this Battalion was originally assigned the mission of covering the construction of a fighter strip, at Aola Bay, but when it was discovered that there was no suitable area there for a fighter strip, the force was shifted to Koli Point—site of the new airstrip—where the remainder of the Combat Team arrived late in November. Part of a composite Army-Marine Division, the 147th RCT took part in much of the heavy fighting on Guadalcanal until all organized resistance ended in February. Within a few days after the bulk of the fighting stopped, the Second Battalion arrived at the Canal with the 37th Division and was reassigned to the 147th, thus, the Regiment was again a complete unit.

Following the Guadalcanal action, the "high command" decided to use the 147th as a "guinea pig" unit to attempt to find a complete "knock-out" treatment for malaria—that bug-a-boo that was causing as many if not more casualties than the Japanese.

The regiment was shipped to a non-malarious island, British Samoa, for this test. Many different treatments were used to fight malaria although clinical effects were overcome, no permanent cure was found. So in February, 1944, the 147th was ordered to New Caledonia for resupply and retraining.

In April, 1944, the Regiment made an unopposed landing at Emirau, north of Bougainville, where it defended the island while naval construction battalions built two runways capable of handling fighters and light bombers. In July, the 147th returned to New Caledonia and while there, on 2 August, Colonel William B. Tuttle, who had commanded the regiment since it left for overseas duty, left the regiment and Lt. Col. Robert Johnson assumed command.

In March, 1945, the 147th landed on Iwo Jima and relieved the Marines of their "mopping-up" task and cleared the island of all resistance. On 30 June, 1945, the First Battalion was sent to Tinian Island to relieve the 24th Infantry Regiment as the defense garrison.

It was on September 8th, 1945, that the Regiment left Iwo Jima and Tinian and moved to Okinawa where it remained until December 8th at which time it returned to the United States and was inactivated, by elements, at Vancouver Barracks, Fort Lewis and Fort Lawton, Washington.

For its World War II action, the Regiment was credited with action in the Guadalcanal, Northern Solomons and Bismarck Archipelago campaigns. Service Company was awarded a meritorious unit streamer embroidered with "Pacific Theater."

During December, 1946 and early 1947, the Regiment, commanded by Colonel Geo. C. Schiele, was again reorganized as part of the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard, and it was ordered to active duty on January 15, 1952 with the 37th and made the rail move to Camp Polk, Louisiana for training.

Commanding Officer
147th Infantry
Regiment

COLONEL GEORGE C. SCHIELE

Colonel George C. Schiele, commanding officer of the 147th Infantry assumed command of that regiment in December of 1946 bringing with him a background of a total, today, of 24 years of military service as an enlisted man and officer in the reserves and on active duty.

Ordered to active duty as a captain in January, 1941, Colonel Schiele attended The Infantry School and was assigned to Camp Wheeler, Georgia, where he served as an infantry company commander, post trial judge advocate, regimental adjutant and battalion commander. In March, 1943, he returned to The Infantry School as a student and then became an instructor in combat intelligence. Transferred to China, he served (as a lieutenant colonel) as G-3, Kwangsi Command and was Commandant, South China Officers School, being promoted to Colonel in November, 1945.

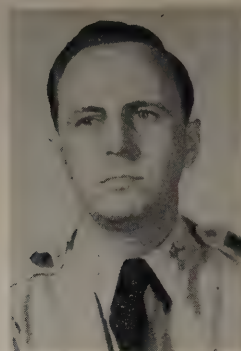

When the 147th was reactivated as a part of the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard in December, 1945, Colonel Schiele was selected as regimental commander.

Prior to his return to active duty with the Division in January, 1952, he had served the city of Cincinnati, Ohio as its City Treasurer for six years. Prior to World War II he practiced law and was associated with the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

An emergency aid station is set up in the field.

This "Casualty" is really riding in style!

Even the patients lend a hand here!

These medics have plenty of "Victims" to practice on.

Waiting for more casualties!

148TH INFANTRY REGIMENT

HISTORY OF THE 148th INFANTRY

The American Republic was still in its infancy when, in 1792, General Anthony Wayne marched his small army up the Maumee River and, at Fallen Timbers, near the present site of Toledo, Ohio, defeated the Indians to break their power in Ohio. Mad Anthony, as he was called, because of his daring and the courageous band of Indian fighters he led, initiated for the 148th its heritage of valor. It is from this beginning that we find the history of the 148th Infantry paralleling that of American History. It is the story of Fallen Timbers, Chickamauga, Meuse Argonne, the Dayton Flood, Nelsonville Coal Mines, Munda, Bougainville, Manila, Baguio, and Balet Pass. Further it is a story of a host of men who engraved their names on table of sand, such names as, Cap Richards, Gilson Light, Rodger Young, Cleto Rodriguez, Claude Miller, Mike Prater and Max Sesler. But, above all, it is a story of service to the state, to the nation and to the world, in time of peace and in time of war.

The years of the Civil War brought several antecedents of the 148th Infantry, namely the 2nd and the 6th Ohio Volunteer Regiments. The 16th Infantry Regiment was formed in the area of Ohio now being served by the 148th Infantry. 1898 saw the 16th Regiment back on active duty as the 6th Ohio and moving once again to the deep South and within a year was moving by foot, rail and ship to Cienguegos, Cuba and Trinidad. In the years following, men from the 2nd and 6th Ohio Regiments served in the Philippine Insurrection and the Boxer uprising, and in such peacetime service as at Dayton during the catastrophic flood of 1913.

The year 1916 brought Pancho Villa's raid on Columbus, New Mexico. On July 14, 1916, the 3rd Infantry, Ohio National Guard, direct predecessor of the 148th Infantry, was mustered into Federal Service and rushed to duty on the Mexican Border at El Paso, Texas. There, the Guardsman received the training which was soon to be put to its most severe test to date. Several units were never mustered out of service from Border duty, but were sent directly to Camps for additional training. It was on September 15, 1917 that the 3rd Ohio was redesignated the 148th Infantry, 74th Brigade, 37th Infantry Division.

The record of the 148th in the first World War is a memorable one. In the front lines at Baccarat and at Pannes, in the Meuse-Argonne and Ypres-Lys offensives at Recicourt and Avocourt, men of the 148th fought valiantly in the three strenuous months which were to bring victory to the Allied troops. It was the Ypres-Lys campaign that saw the crowning achievement of the 148th. There the Regiment, first of all the Allied troops, crossed the Escaut River in Belgium on November 2, 1918 and maintained the crossing in spite of heavy losses from devastating machine-gun and shell fire. It was there, too, that the regimental motto "We'll do it" was inspired. It traveled the ranks of the American soldiers until it became a battle cry for victory.

With the signing of the Armistice, the 148th stayed on in Europe for several months before it returned to the United States and was demobilized. July 1, 1921 the 148th Infantry was reorganized as such.

It was on September 27, 1923 that the 148th Infantry regimental insignia was approved—the first in the United States to receive official War Department sanction. The original crest was designed by Charles L. McBride Jr., who at that time was serving as the regimental adjutant.

The crest has seventeen (17) silver arrows, banded by a sprig of buckeye on a wreath of blue and gold, which are the regimental colors. The seventeen arrows signifies Ohio, which was the seventeenth state to be admitted to the Union.

The shield is azure, for infantry, divided by a red fess, bordered by two gold bands with two fleur-de-lys in chief and a gold lion in rampant. The fleur-de-lys represent the offensive and defensive actions in which the regiment participated in France. The lion represents Belgium, where the regiment engaged in the Ypres-Lys offensive.

The red fess, wavy and bordered by the two gold bands, represents the Escaut River, which was crossed first, of all the troops (allied) by the 148th Infantry on 2 November 1918. The regimental motto "We'll Do It" inscribed below the shield, was inspired during this crossing and became a battle cry for the offensive. It was this battle cry that inspired the members of this regiment to rise above the normal call of duty and to go on to soundly defeat an enemy of superior numbers and to bring about a great victory for the allies.

The years 1921 to 1940 constituted a period of rebuilding and peacetime service. The 148th was called to duty at Sandusky following a destructive tornado of 1924 and at Cincinnati during the disastrous flood of 1937. The Guard of Honor at the funeral for President Warren G. Harding included men of the 148th. When strikes taxed the efforts of civilian authorities, the 148th was called to help maintain peace and protect property.

October 15, 1940 found the 148th Infantry, as part of the 37th Division back in active federal service and training in the deep South at Camp Shelby. Shortly after its arrival at its training station the 148th received a large number of selective service personnel and started a long training program designed to make it one of the finest fighting units in the U. S. Army. After sixteen months of rigorous training the unit moved to Indiantown Gap and finished off its pre-embarkation training, designed for European service. With the Japanese sweeping to seemingly easy victories against our under-manned Pacific defenses, the 37th was rushed to the Islands to set up a series of island defenses designed to stop the advances and island hopping of the Sons of Nippon. The 148th landed at Suva, Fiji Islands in early June 1942 and immediately set up a long coastal defense on the western part of Viti Levu. This program coupled with vigorous jungle training fitted the 148th for its baptism of fire on New Georgia. July 1943 found the 148th under command of Col. Stuart A. Baxter fighting the best the Nips had to offer in the battle for Munda Airstrip. It took only one campaign and the veterans of the 148th could be proud of this new fighting unit. Lt. Col. (now Brig. Gen.) Delbert Schultz took the 3rd Bn. on a special mission with a Marine Raider Force and hit the Japs at Bairoko Harbor and fought their way through some of the toughest terrain in the Solomon Islands to tie up with the remainder of the 148th in the final push for the Airstrip.

After but a brief rest, unloading ships at Guadalcanal, the 148th was again to lead the way for the 37th and follow the 3rd Marine Division into Bougainville. Once the perimeter defenses were set, it was a matter of marking time until the Jap 6th Division hit. Early March 1944 found them doing just that, making a penetration of the 145th lines near Hill 700. The 2nd Bn. under the command of Lt. Col. (now Col.) Herbert W. Radcliffe, was ordered to counter-attack and drive the Japs from the Hill. After a brief but bloody battle the 2nd Bn. restored the lines. Within a week the 2nd Bn. again was called upon to back up the 129th Infantry in its sector. For their heroic and courageous efforts three

COLONEL HERBERT W. RADCLIFFE

Colonel Herbert W. Radcliffe, Commanding Officer of the 148th Infantry, served with this regiment during the entire period it was on active duty during World War II.

When the 37th Infantry Division was inducted into federal service in October, 1940, Colonel Radcliffe, then captain, commanded Company "E" of the 148th. During the more than five years of active duty, including 39 months overseas, he was successively S-3 of the 148th as a major and commanding officer of the Second Battalion as a lieutenant colonel.

Colonel Radcliffe has completed more than 28 years of military service both in the National Guard and on active duty. When the 148th was reorganized following World War II he was named regimental executive officer and became regimental commander in November of 1951.

His awards include the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Combat Infantrymen's Badge, the Presidential Unit Citation and the Philippines Presidential Citation.

In civilian life, Colonel Radcliffe is a mechanical engineer, having been associated with the Ohio Machine Tool Company of Kenton, for 23 years, the last five of which he was chief engineer.

The instrument operator checks his aiming circle during the laying in of the platoon's mortars.

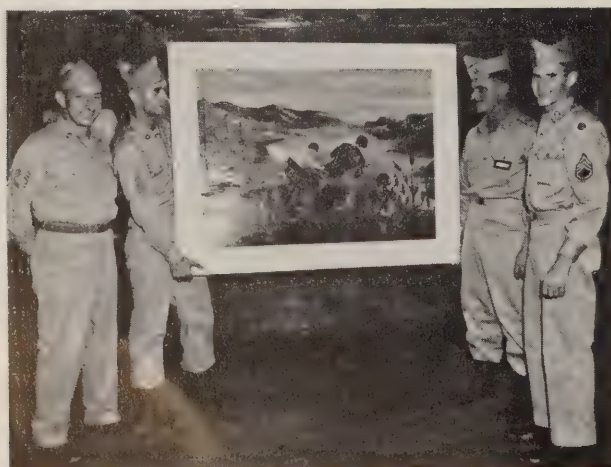

The gunner and his assistant duck after dropping a 4.2 round down the tube.

Practicing the delicate operation of removing a misfire from the tube.

"I read you loud and clear!"

This job has to be done right!

Everyone gets their fair share here!

The S-3 section checks a future training site.

The Personnel men of Service Co. keep a careful check on all your records.

Oh—to be a medic!

The only living Medal of Honor winner of the 37th, T/Sgt. Cleto Rodriguez (Co. B, 148th Inf.) talks with Col. Radcliffe and two wartime buddies from Baker Company, M/Sgt. Kruse and Pvt. Baker, during his visit to the Division in January.

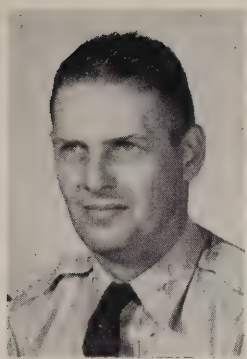

It takes plenty of good maintenance to keep those tanks running smoothly!

The 75 mm. recoilless rifle crew moves up.

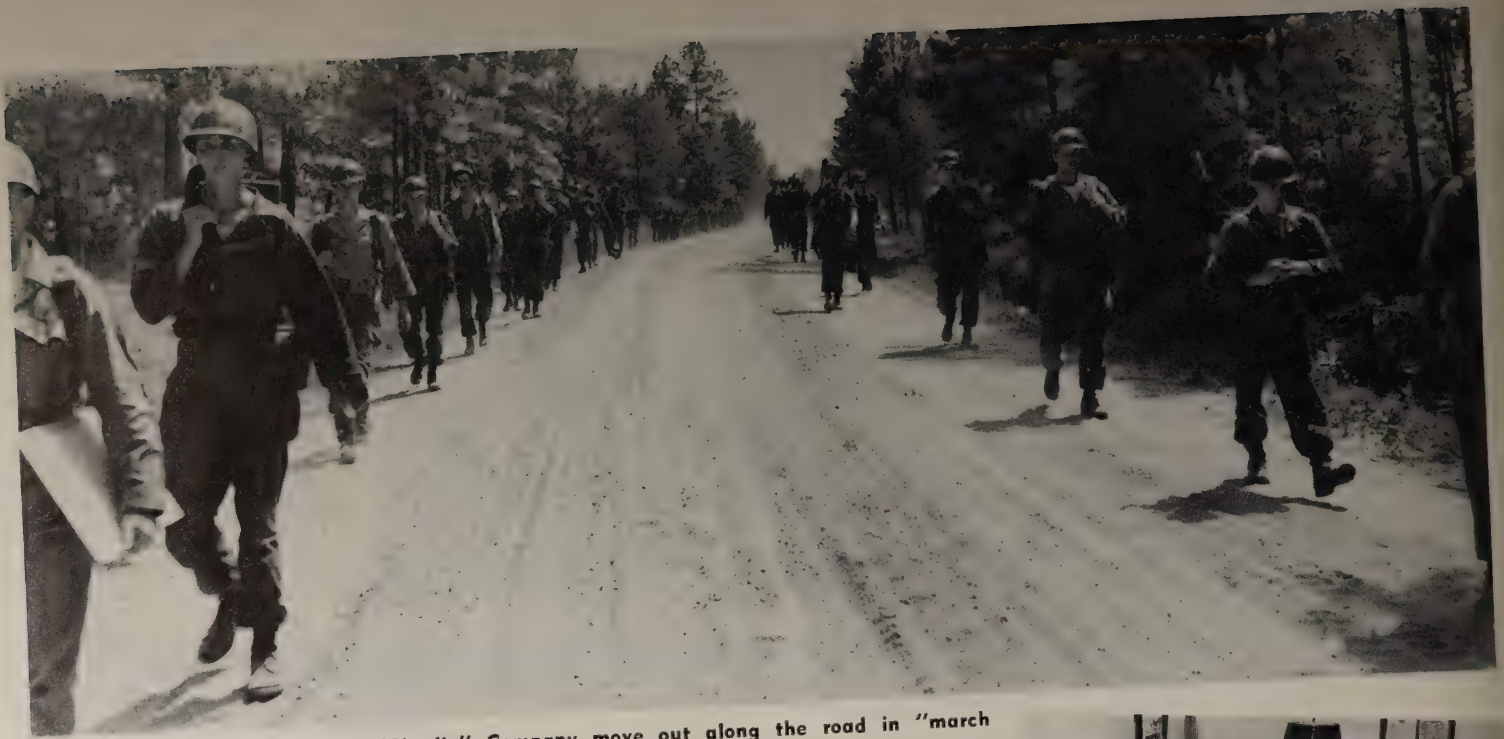

There's more here than meets the eye!

This is definitely the wrong end to be on if this heavy machine gun opens fire.

The crew on this 81 mm. mortar has quite a attentive audience as they set up their weapon.

The men of "Charlie" Company move out along the road in "march column" for the start of a long hike.

Four members of "Able" Company relax in their well furnished day room.

Riflemen of "Baker" Company move forward in a skirmish line.

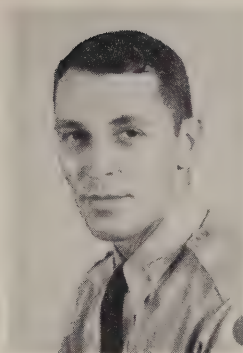

You can usually find a hot card game, the newspaper from Toledo, or a good magazine in "Able" Company's day room.

37TH DIVISION ARTILLERY

History

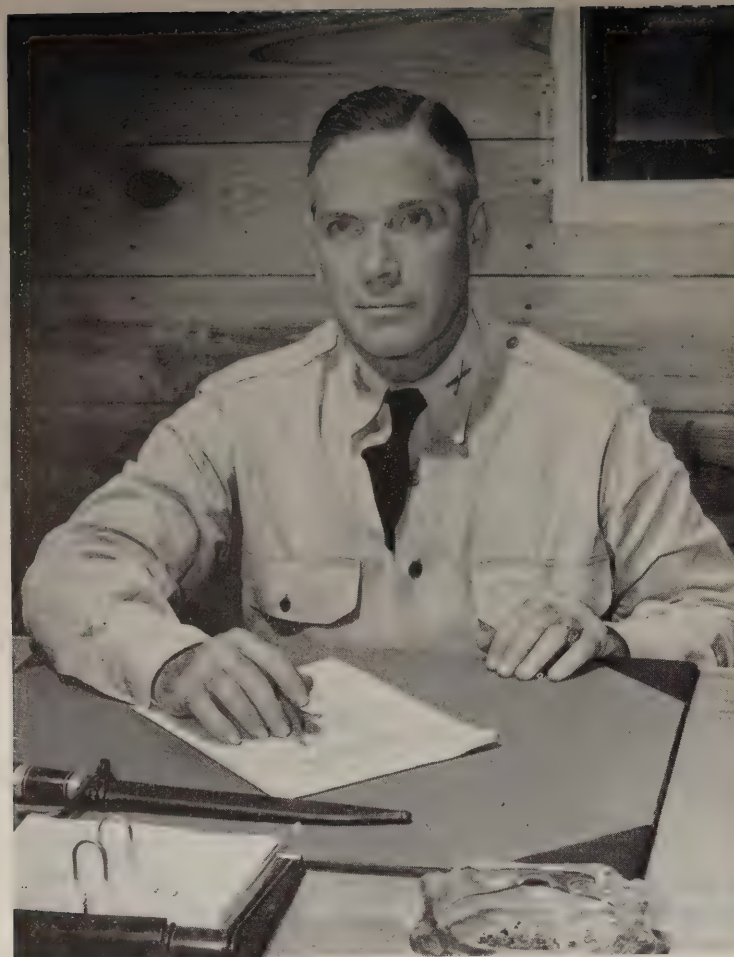

Headquarters 62d F. A. Brigade was organized at Camp Sheridan, Alabama in September 1917 under command of Brigadier General William T. Smith. The Brigade consisted of the Headquarters Battery 62d F. A. Brigade, 134th, 135th, and 136th F. A. Regiments and the 112th Trench Mortar Battery and the 112th Ammunition Trains. The Brigade under a series of different commanders served in the United States, England and France and was inactivated in April of 1919 after return to the United States. The Brigade Headquarters was again activated in August of 1922 under command of Brigadier General Harold M. Bush, the father of Ohio Artillery, and consisted of the Brigade Headquarters Battery, the 134th and 135th F. A. Regiments. The 136th F. A. Regiment was added in 1936. The Brigade was ordered to active duty in October, 1940. On February 1, 1942 the Brigade was changed to 37th Division Artillery under command of Brigadier General Leo M. Kreber. The 134th and 135th F. A. Regiments were broken up. The 1st Bn. 134th F. A. Regiment became the 134th F. A. Bn.; the 2nd Bn. 134th F. A. Regiment became the 140th F. A. Bn.; the 1st Bn., 135th Regiment became the 135th F. A. Bn.; the 2nd Bn., 135th F. A. Regiment became the 136th F. A. Bn.; and the 2nd Bns. of the 135th and 136th F. A. Regiments were formed into the 174th F. A. Regiment and passed from control of the 37th Division Artillery. On March of 1942, the 134th F. A. Bn. was assigned to a special task force and left the division. It was replaced later by the 6th F. A. Bn. The 37th Division Artillery served in the Pacific with the Division and was inactivated in December of 1945 on return to the United States.

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery 37th Division Artillery was activated on 11 November 1946 under command of Brigadier General Kenneth Cooper at Columbus, Ohio. The 134th, 135th, 136th, and 140th F. A. Bns. were organized shortly thereafter in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton and Toledo areas respectively. In 1949 the 137th A.A.A. Bn. was added to the 37th Division Artillery.

The 37th Division Artillery reported to Camp Polk, La., in January of 1952 and proceeded to train for its mission assigned.

As of November 1, 1952 the 37th Division Artillery had furnished over 200 officers and 700 key enlisted men for overseas service with the bulk going to Korea. Less than 10 of the original officers remained.

Executive Officer
37th Division
Artillery

COLONEL HOWARD F. HAINES

Colonel Howard F. Haines, Executive Officer of the 37th Division Artillery, 37th Infantry Division, first joined the Division as an artillery lieutenant in 1923.

During World War II, Colonel Haines was Executive Officer, 62nd Field Artillery Brigade; S-3, 37th Division Artillery; Commanding Officer, 6th Field Artillery Battalion; Commanding Officer, 545th Field Artillery Battalion; Commandant, Natambua Officer Candidate School, Fiji; and Commanding Officer, 418th Field Artillery Group.

He served in the Pacific Theatre for three years in Fiji, Guadalcanal, Bougainville, Hawaii, Philippines and Japan; and received the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal for his service during the war.

An optometrist in civilian life, Colonel Haines graduated from Ohio State University in 1923. He further studied optometry at Ohio State, receiving a Doctorate in Optical Science in 1938, and was serving on the faculty of the School of Optometry when recalled to active duty in January, 1952 with the 37th.

134th FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION

History

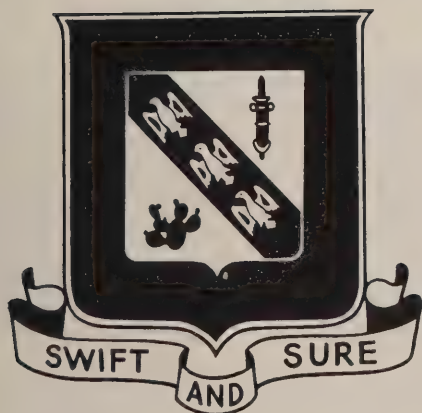

The parent unit of the 134th Field Artillery Battalion was constituted on 7 May 1877 and designated as "the Cavalry of the Ohio National Guard" with a troop in Cincinnati, Ohio. This was later redesignated as the 2nd Cincinnati Troop and was mustered into Federal service for duty in the Spanish-American War as the 1st Ohio Volunteer Cavalry.

This was reorganized on 25 July 1910 as the 1st Cavalry Squadron with Troop C at Cincinnati. This Squadron entered into active military service on 6 July 1916 and was on Mexican Border duty until 28 February 1917. They were expanded to the 1st Cavalry Regiment in May, 1917 and were converted to the 2nd and 3rd F. A. Regiments the same month.

In August of 1917 they were again activated for World War I duty, and in September of that year were redesignated the 135th and 136th F. A. Regiments respectively. During this period they participated in the battle of Lorraine. These Field Artillery units were mustered out of Federal service on 10 April 1919 and reorganized as the 1st Cavalry Regiment. In 1921 this unit was redesignated the 107th Cavalry and consolidated into a two squadron regiment in November 1940. This regiment entered active service for World War II duty in March 1941 and was mechanized 30 March 1942.

It was reorganized as Hqs and Hqs Troop, 107th Cavalry Group (mechanized) and the 107th and 22nd Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron (mechanized), and inactivated 15 August 1944 at Camp Gruber, Oklahoma; and reorganized as the 134th F. A. Bn, 23 January 1947 at Cincinnati.

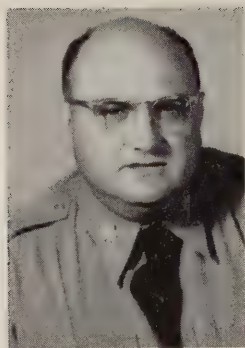

The Battalion entered active military service with the 37th Infantry Division on 15 January 1952 at Cincinnati and reported for training 23 January 1952 to Camp Polk, Louisiana, its present station.

It's fun firing—but these men of "B" Battery have little love for the cleaning detail afterwards!

Those stoves can really get dirty after several days in the field—as these cooks of "Able" Battery know only too well.

It takes a lot of work in the Service Battery motor maintenance shop to keep the Battalion rolling.

The most popular and busiest spot in the battery area.

It takes plenty of food to feed the battalion every day.

Checking the fuses before sending them to the batteries.

The battery is always busy supplying the battalion with ammo and keeping records.

Headquarters Battery men check over their survey equipment.

It takes communications from Hqs. Battery to keep the Battalion firing.

Those "105s" from "Charlie" Battery are always kept spotless!

Miles and miles of wire for "C" Battery.

All the men on a 105 mm. crew from "Charlie" Btry. lend a hand in digging in their howitzer.

The men of "Able" Btry. often relax in their dayroom by playing table tennis doubles.

SPECIAL SERVICES, RECREATION and ENTERTAINMENT

A.

A. Introducing the Melody Maids—the beautiful belles from Beaumont who can sing just as pretty as they look. Needless to say—they were well received by the men of the Division!

C.

B. One of the many dances held in Camp Polk's spacious Service Club. Everyone had a good time with music by the 37th Division Dance Band and plenty of good looking girls from the surrounding towns.

C. How would you like a date with this lovely little lady? So would several thousand other men! All you have to do is tell her why she should go out with you!

135th FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION

History

The 135th Field Artillery had its beginning in 1839 when a gun squad was formed within the Cleveland Greys, a Military Company active at that time.

In 1845 this squad separated from the Greys and formed an organization known as the Cleveland Light Artillery which later became a regiment designated as The 1st Regiment Ohio Light Artillery.

The Regiment entered the Civil War and received its baptism of fire at Philippi, West Virginia, on June 3, 1861. Principal engagements participated in during the Civil War are Shiloh, Manassas, Fredericksburg, Murfreesborough, Chancellorville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Nashville, Atlanta as well as operations in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi and Virginia.

The Regiment was again mustered into active military service on 11 June 1916 at Camp Willis, Ohio, and left for the Mexican Border on Labor Day of that year. The Regiment was active in the vicinity of Fort Bliss, Texas, until 12 March 1917. Later that year the Regiment was redesignated as the 134th Field Artillery and assigned to the 62nd Field Artillery Brigade, 37th Division.

The Regiment was sent to France in World War I and initially assigned to the Marbache sector of Lorraine. Later it supported the 92nd Division at Saint Genevieve and the 28th Division in the vicinity of Vigneuilles, Pannes sector, until the end of the war.

Following World War I, re-organization as the 135th Field Artillery was completed by 1922.

Prior to World War II, the 135th Field Artillery was ordered into active service with the 37th Division on 15 October 1940, and marched to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, for training. In January 1942, the Regiment was reduced to a battalion to conform to the triangular organization of the 37th Division. From Camp Shelby, the Battalion went to Indiantown Gap and from there to San Francisco, for shipment overseas.

In World War II, the Battalion saw its first overseas station at Auckland, New Zealand. In July of 1942, the Battalion joined the rest of the 37th Division at Suva in the Fiji Group and prepared defensive positions as this was the period of the Eastward expansion of the Japanese forces. From Fiji, the Battalion went to Guadalcanal in April of 1943, to stage for further operations in the Solomons. The Battalion participated in the New Georgia campaign and returned to Guadalcanal to re-equip. After a few weeks' rest the Battalion sailed for Bougainville and remained there until December of 1944. Following Bougainville, the Battalion again sailed, this time to the Philippines, and participated in the landing at Lingayen, Luzon. While on Luzon, the Battalion was active on the march to Manila and the operation to secure the city. After Manila was secure, the 135th Field Artillery Battalion, in support of the 145th Infantry was attached to the 6th Division and secured the Novaliches watershed area. From there the Battalion again joined the Division at Santa Fe and participated in the securing of the Cagayan Valley in Northern Luzon, where the war was ended. The Battalion was demobilized with the Division on 13 December 1945, at Camp Anza, California.

Following World War II, the Battalion was again reactivated as the 135th Field Artillery Battalion, a unit of the 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard, on 21 November 1946.

After the firing is over the wire crew of "Charlie" Battery have to pick up all the wire they so carefully laid.

Everyone had to take basic training, and men of Battery "B" fire for record on the M-1 range.

Men of Service Battery put up a maintenance tent for operations in the field.

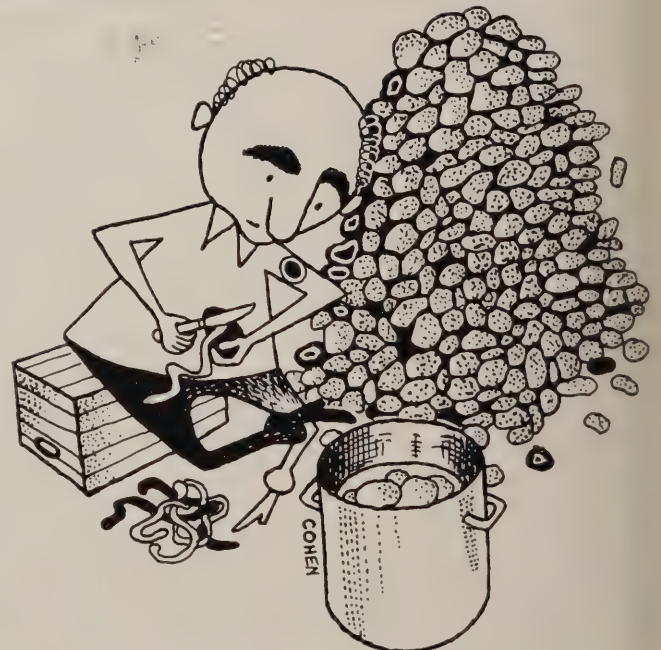

"Charlie" Battery's switch-board gets field repairs.

"B" Btry. on line.

Men of "A" Battery fire on the range.

140th FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION

History

The parent unit of the 140th Field Artillery Battalion was first organized on July 6, 1839 as the Gun Section of the Cleveland Grays, under the command of Sergeant D. L. Wood. Six years later it was expanded to a battery and redesignated the Cleveland Light Artillery. On August 1, 1860, after being expanded again the 140th became the 1st Regiment of the Ohio Light Artillery. During the early part of 1861 they served a brief three months and six days in the Federal service.

Foreseeing troubles between the North and the South, the regiment was reorganized as the 1st Regiment, Ohio Volunteers, and mustered into Federal Service by batteries during September and December of 1861. Many battle honors were bestowed upon the batteries during the Civil War as they participated in such famous campaigns as: Shiloh Valley, Manassas, Fredericksburg, Murfreesboro, Chancellorville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Franklin, and Nashville. The victory for the North found the Regiment mustered out of Federal service by batteries, and the units continued as independent batteries of artillery.

The next three decades found the Regiment being reconstituted and reorganized. And on May 3, 1898 they were established as the 1st Battalion, Ohio Volunteer Light Artillery, being mustered into Federal service May 11, 1898, and reorganized as the 1st Regiment Light Artillery, Ohio National Guard. The Regiment was disbanded a year later with the batteries continuing unattached.

From September 23, 1911 to September 15, 1917 the Regiment was reconstituted, mustered into active military service, expanded, and then redesignated as the 134th Field Artillery Regiment, 37th Infantry Division. They served in the famous campaign of Lorraine in World War I, and were demobilized in April of 1919 at Camp Sherman, Ohio. The 140th was reorganized again this time as the 1st Field Artillery Regiment, Ohio National Guard, August 4, 1919, and redesignated the 134th Field Artillery Regiment in 1920, later being expanded and redesignated as the 134th and 135th Field Artillery Regiments with Headquarters of the 135th Field Artillery Regiment being Federally recognized on February 1, 1922.

The onset of World War II found the 135th Regiment inducted into active military service on October 15, 1940. Upon triangularization of the 37th Division in January 1942, the 2nd Battalion, 135th Field Artillery Regiment was redesignated, 1st Battalion, 174th Field Artillery Regiment and relieved from the 37th Infantry Division. In February, it was redesignated the 174th Field Artillery Battalion and served in the European Theater of Operation. It was during that time they served and won honors in such famous campaigns as: Normandy, Northern France, Central Europe, Ardennes-Alsace, and the Rhineland. With the winning of the war the 174th returned to the States and was inactivated December 23, 1945 at Camp Kilmer, New Jersey.

The 140th was reorganized and Federally recognized as the 140th Field Artillery Battalion, 37th Infantry Division, on November 20, 1946. The aggression and the widespread of communism found the 140th activated with the 37th Infantry Division. And, on January 15, 1952 they reported for active military service to be trained at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

136th FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION

History

The lineage of the 136th Field Artillery Battalion, the medium artillery battalion of the 37th Infantry Division, goes back to three batteries of artillery which were organized from 1920 to 1922.

On 25 June 1936 the 136th Field Artillery Regiment, Ohio National Guard, was constituted and assigned to the 37th Infantry Division. The Regiment was then organized by Colonel Leo M. Kreber and Federally recognized on 17 May 1937. The three original batteries were included in the organization of the regiment in May 1937.

The next date of historical note was on 15 October 1940, at which time the 136th Field Artillery Regiment was inducted into Federal service with the 37th Infantry Division. Shortly after induction, Colonel Kenneth Cooper moved the regiment to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, where they began training for the war that was to follow later.

About the time of the army-wide reorganization of square divisions into triangular divisions, the 136th Field Artillery Regiment was broken up. On 1 February 1942 the regiment (less 1st Battalion) was redesignated as the 174th Field Artillery Regiment (less 1st Battalion) and was relieved from assignment to the 37th Infantry Division. On the same date, the 1st Battalion was redesignated as the 136th Field Artillery Battalion, 37th Infantry Division.

Overseas service was soon to be in store for the newly designated 136th Field Artillery Battalion. Less than four months later, on 25 May 1942, the Battalion departed for overseas. Their first destination was Auckland, New Zealand where the Battalion spent the first six weeks at Camp Papakura. Next, the Battalion was sent to Viti Levu Island in the Fiji Group. Sometime later the Battalion moved to Guadalcanal for final training with other units of the 37th Division, prior to the New Georgia Campaign. Except for a short time, while attached to the 43rd Division, the Battalion participated in the entire New Georgia Campaign with the 37th Division.

During November, 1943 the Battalion landed on Bougainville Island in the Northern Solomons with the 37th Division. It participated in the bloody battle of Hill 700 which virtually destroyed the Japanese 6th Division in March 1944.

After a period of amphibious training on Bougainville, the 136th Battalion landed at Lingayen Gulf on Luzon, Philippine Islands in January 1945. It participated in the fast moving battle down the central plain of Luzon to Manila. The Battalion entered combat again during the battle for the mountain city of Baguio in April 1945. And then participated in the rapid action northward through Balete Pass and the entire length of the Cagayan Valley in Northern Luzon. The Battalion was still in the Philippines on VJ Day when the Japanese surrender was taken.

Campaign streamers were awarded the 136th Battalion for participation in the Northern Solomons and the Luzon Campaigns. The end of the war saw the inactivation of the 136th Field Artillery Battalion by elements at Camp Anza and Stoneman, California, on 13 December 1945.

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 174th Field Artillery Group was inactivated on 25 October 1945 at Camp Myles Standish, Massachusetts, while the 987th Field Artillery Battalion was inactivated at Camp Cooke, California, on 27 October 1945. These units were awarded campaign streamers for the Normandy (with arrow-head), Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe campaigns. The 987th Field Artillery Battalion was cited in the Order of the Day of the Belgian Army for action at St. Vith, while attached to the 7th Armored Division.

These three units were reorganized and consolidated to form the 136th Field Artillery Battalion, 37th Infantry Division, Ohio National Guard, with home station in the Dayton, Ohio area. Headquarters and Headquarters Battery was Federally recognized at Dayton on 10 December 1946.

On 15 January 1952, the Battalion was inducted into active military service at Dayton, as a part of the 37th Division. Shortly thereafter, the 136th departed for Camp Polk, Louisiana to begin its training for whatever mission it may be called upon to perform.

155 mm. crew practices loading without a loading tray.

In order to have precise accuracy while firing, you must first "lay the battery" to the exact mil.

The field switchboard team is a vital link of communications between the firing battery and Fire Direction Center.

It's easy when you know how.

"You break it and we'll fix it" is the motto of the men in Service Battery.

Easy does it!

Rosters-Rosters-Rosters! That's one thing the orderly room has plenty of!

Men of "Able" Battery find out what "heavy artillery" means!

Unpacking powder charges for "Able."

"Able" Battery drivers relax after bringing in their howitzers.

"Headquarters" Battery enjoys a picnic.

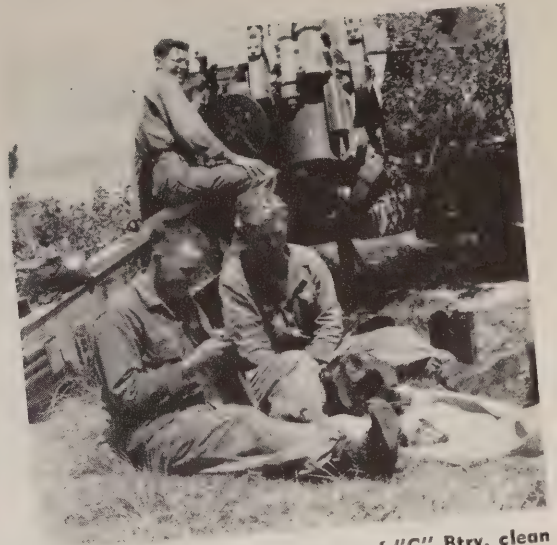

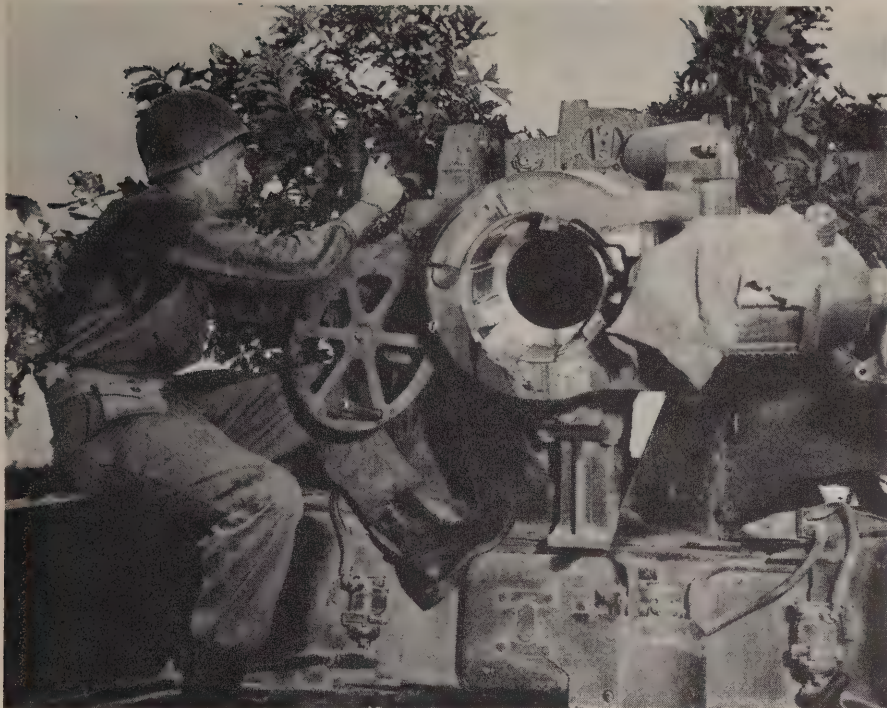

This makes the "Fourth of July" seem like kid stuff.

The A & P has nothing on Service Battery!

... Fire!

Men of "C" Btry. clean their howitzer.

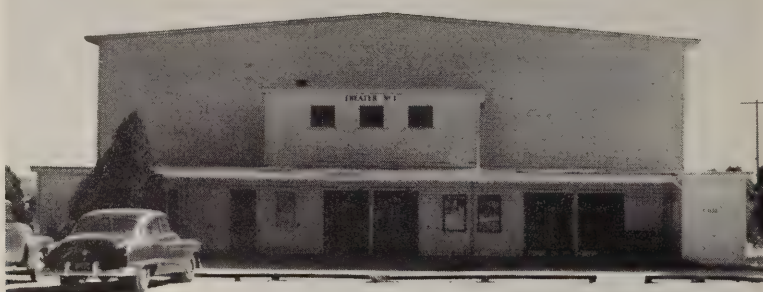

What—No tonsils?

CAMP POLK FACILITIES

137th AAA AW BATTALION (SP)

History

The 137th AAA AW Battalion was activated in the fall of 1947 with Headquarters & Headquarters Battery and Battery "A" in Columbus, Ohio, Battery "B" in Cincinnati, Ohio, Battery "C" in Springfield, Ohio, and Battery "D" in Cleveland, Ohio, with Lt. Col. Lovell B. Tipton then commanding.

The 137th AAA AW Battalion attended a two week Field Training period at Camp Pendleton, Virginia, in August of 1948, and again at Camp Perry, Ohio in July of 1949 and 1950. This was followed up with a two week period of training at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, and Camp Perry, Ohio during July of 1951.

In February 1949, the Battalion was assigned to the 37th Infantry Division and became part of the 37th Division Artillery, commanded by Brigadier General Kenneth Cooper.

The Battalion was Federalized into Active Service 15 January 1952, and arrived at Fort Bliss, Texas on 22 January 1952 to begin its training under supervision of the First Composite Group. The Battalion was administered the Army Training Test at Fort Bliss, Texas in July of 1952, and received an overall rating of excellent.

The phase of this training being completed, the Battalion now under the command of Major Frank R. Nairn departed from Fort Bliss 11 August 1952, and joined the 37th Division at Camp Polk, Louisiana.

Headquarters Battery Administrative Section—hard at work in the field.

All the eyes on an "Able" Battery's anti-aircraft crew watch the sky for the first signs of an "enemy" plane.

A plane is spotted, and the men of an "Able" Battery halftrack swiftly take their battle positions.

R.B.

Pass the ammo for Battery "C."

Here comes a target for "B" Battery.

"Ace Tray Natural" means "Good Shooting," and these holes prove the point!

The battalion
ammo supply point was always busy . . .

. . . As these men of "Able" Battery
kept their weapon hot!

Concerto on a quad fifty.

HISTORY OF THE 148TH INFANTRY

units of the 148th Infantry received the Presidential Unit Citation.

January 1945 saw the 148th, led by its outstanding Commander, Col. Lawrence K. White, pushing ashore at Lingayen Gulf, Luzon Island, and heading toward Manila. To the veterans of the 148th there can be no doubt as to what unit reached Manila first. Along the way such strongholds as Clark Field, Fort Stotenburg and Santa Tomas had to be neutralized. Following the fall of Manila the 148th pushed on toward Balete Pass and thence onward to Baguio and the fall of the summer capital. Before the 148th could catch their breath they were on the move again, this time up through the Cagayan Valley and moving toward Aparri before the Japs finally surrendered.

From September to December the 148th performed occupational tasks in Luzon before they returned to the United States under the command of Col. Delbert Schultz. Once more a job of reorganization followed the deactivation of the 37th Division. Back in Ohio, Col. Schultz, Lt. Col. Radcliffe and numerous other 148th veterans undertook the task of reforming units of the 148th Infantry in Northwestern Ohio. The brilliant history made by men of the 148th made their task easier. A record of six Medal of Honor winners in the 148th Inf., a Unit Citation for the entire Regiment plus three that the company size units had won left no doubt in any one's mind that here was a unit that had served mankind well.

January 15, 1952 found the 148th back in the deep South, this time at Camp Polk and once more shouldering a burden of mankind and doing its share to protect for all mankind, peace, and a free way of life. Many men have sacrificed tears, years, blood and life that the 148th Infantry can rightfully find its place in the annals of military history. Now it is up to you to carry on the esteem and traditions inherited by you as members of this organization.

team exercises; and two weeks to division maneuvers. This training began on February 4th and was completed on September 13th—the entire Division passing the four day Army Training Test conducted from September 3rd to 6th. Then the Division embarked on post-cycle training.

However, the 37th received another mission in addition to continuance of training as a general reserve unit—trained, equipped and maintained in a state of readiness for immediate use in an offensive or defensive role. This new mission was to conduct basic training for newly inducted personnel. The Army announced in September, that in order to replace men inducted during 1950, increased requests for personnel were being made to Selective Service, and that general reserve units would be called upon to train some of these men. The 148th Infantry, the 136th Field Artillery Battalion, and Company D, 112th Engineer (Combat) Battalion were formed into the 148th Regimental Combat Team to conduct this basic training for the 37th. The first inductees arrived by bus from Fort Sill, Okla. on October 8th.

In the two previous active duty tours, the 37th Division has had units detached for service with other Divisions or commands. This time, all indications are that all units will remain with the 37th, however, a large percentage of its original personnel and the regular army, reserve and selective service personnel assigned to the Division have been ordered overseas as individual replacements to serve with other units. This has been necessitated by the fact, as General Collins pointed out during his visit at Camp Polk, that the Army decided that it was more efficient to send individuals from general reserve units overseas as replacements rather than to send the units.

With but few exceptions, the officers and enlisted personnel who have left the Division for overseas assignments as individual replacements would have preferred to remain with the 37th and the Division itself be assigned overseas. The majority of personnel still with the 37th at Camp Polk have shared this feeling.

Nevertheless, we are confident that these men, trained by the 37th and now assigned to other units, are proving to all concerned that the Buckeye Division trains its men well. By the same token, there is little doubt that during this third active duty tour, the 37th will distinguish itself in whatever mission assigned in the tradition of its predecessors and the members of the Division who, by their actions when the chips were down, earned, some with their lives, the proud reputation the 37th Infantry Division has always enjoyed.
